

Notes for contributors

Submissions to the journal should preferably be written in English, but occasionally exceptions will be made for papers written in French, Italian, Portuguese or Spanish. Submissions by scholars from the Americas and from Canada should be sent to:

Rafael A. Núñez Cedeño	or to	Jairo Nunes
Department of Spanish, French, Italian and Portuguese (M/C 315)		FFLCH – Universidade de São Paulo Departamento de Lingüística
University of Illinois at Chicago		Av. Prof. Luciano Gualberto, 403
601 S. Morgan Street		São Paulo, SP
Chicago, IL 60607–7117		05508-900 Brazil
USA

All other contributions, as well as books for review and all correspondence concerning editorial matters, are to be sent to Leo Wetzels.

Four copies of each manuscript should be submitted and should be double-spaced throughout (including notes and references) on one side of A4 or letter-size paper, leaving wide margins. All pages should be numbered serially. The author's name should appear on a separate sheet only. Authors are requested to label at the first occurrence and clearly identify any special characters used. Non-English words should appear in italics or be underscored if no italic typeface is available. Use only double quotation marks throughout, with the exception of translations, when single quotation marks should be used. Contributors are requested to submit the final version on disk as well as a hard copy. If possible one of the common word processors or $\text{\TeX}/\text{\LaTeX}$ should be used.

Examples not in English must have aligned interlinear glosses and an idiomatic translation.

Figures and maps not submitted as files must be reproducible originals and should be submitted on separate sheets, carefully numbered and labeled. They should be referred to in the text and the approximate position should be indicated.

Notes should be kept to an absolute minimum and be as brief as possible. In the notes, tree diagrams should be avoided.

Citations in the text should give the name of the author/editor, the year of publication, and, in the case of quotations, the page reference, all in parentheses, for example: (Smart 1974: 22). Use "et al." in the case of more than two authors. Abbreviations such as "ibid." and "loc. cit." etc. should not be used.

The reference section should contain all works cited in the text, and only those, and they must be listed in alphabetical order of author/editor, with the full first name wherever possible, and with complete bibliographical details (including publisher); in cases of multiple authorship the names of all authors must be given. Journal and book titles must be given in full and must be italicised. Page references must be given for articles in books and journals. Titles of books and articles not in German, French, Italian, or Spanish must be followed by an English translation in square brackets. References should conform to the following examples:

Baker, Mark and Ken Hale (1990). Relativized minimality and pronoun incorporation. Linguistic Inquiry 21: 289–297.

Bickerton, Derek (1974). Creolization, linguistic universals, natural semantics and the brain. University of Hawaii Working Papers in Linguistics 6: 125–141.

— (1984). The language bioprogram hypothesis. The Behavioral and Brain Sciences 7: 173–221.

Chomsky, Noam (1992). Some notes on the economy of derivation and representation. In Principles and Parameters in Comparative Grammar, Robert Freidin (ed.), 417–455. Cambridge, MA: MIT Press.

Muysken, Pieter (1981). Generative Studies on Creole Languages. Dordrecht: Foris.

Stowell, Tim (1981). Origins of phrase structure. Unpublished Ph.D. dissertation, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge.

Authors will receive page proofs for correction, which must be returned by dates determined by the production schedule. Upon publication, contributors will be sent one complimentary copy (each). If there is more than one author and we don't have the address(es) of the other(s), the copies will be sent to the first named author for distribution.