

Contents

Acknowledgements | 13

1 INTRODUCTION | 15

1.1 Research interest and research questions | 15

1.1.1 Research interest | 15

1.1.2 Research questions | 17

1.2 State of the art and contextualisation of the project | 18

1.2.1 State of the art | 18

1.2.2 Contextualisation of the project | 22

1.3 Sources and approaches | 29

1.4 Perspectives on trans and the trans movement | 38

1.4.1 Perspectives on trans(sexuality) | 38

1.4.2 Perspectives on the trans movement | 40

1.5 Theoretical considerations | 40

1.5.1 Sex, gender, sexuality, the subject and gender regime | 40

1.5.2 The liberal-democratic state | 45

1.6 Structuring the argument | 51

2 CONCEPTS OF GENDER AND TRANSSEXUALITY PRIOR TO, AND DURING THE LEGISLATIVE PROCESS LEADING TO THE TRANSSEXUAL ACT | 55

2.1 Developments and debates on transsexuality in sexology in the 1970s and early 1980s | 55

2.1.1 Approaches to transsexuality in the West German sexological debate | 57

- 2.1.2 Developments in the treatment of transsexual individuals | 62
- 2.1.3 Establishing sexology as the authoritative voice on transsexuality | 69
- 2.1.4 Reorganising marginalised genders | 74
- 2.1.5 Summary: Sexological constructions of gender and transsexuality in the pre-legislative decade | 79

2.2 Legal developments and debates on transsexuality in the 1960s and 1970s | 80

- 2.2.1 Principles in law on gender | 81
- 2.2.2 Legal provisions for a revision of first names and the entry of gender in the register of births prior to the Transsexual Act | 83
- 2.2.3 Medical knowledge in jurisdiction and legal scholarship on transsexuality | 93
- 2.2.4 Pre-legislative jurisdiction on transsexuality | 97
- 2.2.5 Summary: Legal constructions of gender and transsexuality in the pre-legislative phase | 105

2.3 Devising the Transsexual Act | 107

- 2.3.1 Outline of the legislative process | 108
- 2.3.2 Sexological and trans concepts and interventions | 115
- 2.3.3 Negotiating transsexuality and trans rights during the parliamentary debate | 124
- 2.3.4 The Transsexual Act | 137
- 2.3.5 Summary: Legislative constructions of gender, transsexuality and gender regime | 143

2.4 A note on the trans movement from the 1970s to the mid-1990s | 144

- 2.4.1 Basic structural and conceptual features of the trans movement | 145
- 2.4.2 Factors leading to a homogeneous image and the isolation of transsexual individuals | 146
- 2.4.3 Discussing the contribution of the trans movement to formal gender recognition | 148
- 2.4.4 Assessing the future of the trans movement | 149
- 2.4.5 Summary: Concepts of transsexuality in the trans movement | 150

3 CONCEPTS OF GENDER AND TRANS(SEXUALITY) PRIOR TO, AND DURING THE LAW REFORM DEBATE | 151

3.1 Developments and debates on trans(sexuality) in sexology from the 1990s to 2010 | 151

- 3.1.1 Approaches to transsexuality in the sexological debate | 152
- 3.1.2 Reconceptualising transsexuality | 161
- 3.1.3 Diagnosing transsexuality and assessing transsexual individuals | 178
- 3.1.4 The medical management of transsexuality | 193
- 3.1.5 Summary: Sexological constructions of gender and transsexuality in the reform period | 205

3.2 Developments and debates in the trans movement from the mid-1990s to 2010 | 206

- 3.2.1 Structural change | 207
- 3.2.2 Conceptual change and differentiation | 212
- 3.2.3 Trans perspectives on legal rules, procedures and practices and psycho-medical premises, procedures and practices | 225
- 3.2.4 Trans organising for social change | 235
- 3.2.5 Summary: Concepts of gender, trans and gender regime in trans lobby organisations | 255

3.3 Legal developments and debates on transsexuality from the 1980s to 2010 | 256

- 3.3.1 Jurisdiction on transsexuality in health insurance law | 258
- 3.3.2 Federal Constitutional Court decisions on age limits and the eligibility of foreigners with permanent residency in the Federal Republic of Germany to an application under the Transsexual Act | 272
- 3.3.3 Jurisdiction and legal scholarship on marriage and registered life partnership under the Transsexual Act | 282
- 3.3.4 Jurisdiction and legal scholarship on somatic requirements for a revision of gender status under the Transsexual Act | 296
- 3.3.5 Summary: Legal constructions of gender, transsexuality and gender regime in the reform period | 318

4 CONCEPTS OF GENDER AND TRANS(SEXUALITY) AFTER THE ACT TO AMEND THE TRANSSEXUAL ACT | 319

4.1 Legal developments with respect to the Transsexual Act in 2011 | 319

- 4.1.1 The Federal Constitutional Court decision on somatic requirements for a revision of gender status under the Transsexual Act | 320
- 4.1.2 Sexological knowledge in Federal Constitutional Court reasoning on somatic requirements | 323
- 4.1.3 Trans movement reactions and reactions in legal scholarship to the Federal Constitutional Court decision on somatic measures | 324
- 4.1.4 Initial lower court interpretations of the Federal Constitutional Court decision on somatic measures | 325
- 4.1.5 Summary: Legal constructions of gender, transsexuality and gender regime in the immediate aftermath of the Act to amend the Transsexual Act | 326

4.2 Developments in trans politics from 2011 to 2014 | 327

- 4.2.1 The dgti e. V. key issues paper for a reform of the Transsexual Act | 328
- 4.2.2 The catalogue of demands for transsexual law reform by the Nationwide Workgroup Transsexual Law Reform | 330
- 4.2.3 The Waldschlösschen declaration by the nationwide network Trans*Aktiv | 335
- 4.2.4 Summary: Concepts of gender, trans and gender regime in trans politics since the Act to amend the Transsexual Act | 338

4.3 Developments and debates in sexology on trans(sexuality) from 2011 to 2014 | 339

- 4.3.1 The debate on reconceptualising transsexuality | 341
- 4.3.2 Diagnosing gender dysphoria | 348
- 4.3.3 Rethinking the psycho-medical management of trans(sexuality) | 359
- 4.3.4 Rethinking psycho-medical involvement under the Transsexual Act | 369
- 4.3.5 Summary: Sexological constructions of gender, trans(sexuality) and gender regime from 2011 to 2014 | 375

5 CONCLUSIONS | 377

6 ABBREVIATIONS AND TRANSLATIONS | 385

7 REFERENCES | 391

