A. J. Cascardi, General Editor

This series publishes books in a wide range of subjects in philosophy and literature, including studies of the social and historical issues that relate these two fields. Drawing on the resources of the Anglo-American and Continental traditions, the series is open to philosophically informed scholarship covering the entire range of contemporary critical thought.

Already published:

J. M. Bernstein, The Fate of Art: Aesthetic Alienation from Kant to Derrida and Adorno

Peter Bürger, The Decline of Modernism

Mary E. Finn, Writing the Incommensurable: Kierkegaard, Rossetti, and Hopkins
