The Quakers’ dedication to plainness extended to how they kept a calendar. Their dating system used numerals rather than names for days and months because they objected to their pagan origins. For this book, I have standardized all dates in the primary documents using the following format: 12 2mo., 1836, which translates to February 12, 1836.