ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book is one of a series of publications from a project titled ‘Mountains in Ancient Literature and Culture and Their Postclassical Reception’, funded by the Leverhulme Trust. I am grateful to the Trust for their generous support. Thanks especially to Dawn Hollis, who has been a wonderful collaborator on the project. My own ideas about the history and representation of mountains in ancient Greek and Roman culture have taken shape in dialogue with Dawn’s research on the history of mountains in early modern Europe and beyond. I am grateful to the many colleagues, from a range of different disciplines, who have taken part in the project’s workshops and shared their ideas and expertise so generously over the past five years. Special thanks also to Nikoletta Manioti, who co-organised with me a conference on mountains in classical antiquity in St Andrews in 2017 just before the start of the project, and to the contributors to that event.

I have been thinking about ancient mountains for at least a decade, probably longer than that. Many people have helped during that time, too many to list in full (not least the many audiences for papers I have given on related subjects at conferences and research seminars over the past ten years or so), but I would like to thank in particular Gianfranco Agosti, Joanne Anderson, William Bainbridge, Elton Barker, William Barton, Alexis Belis, Carla Benzan, Daniel Berman, Harry Boyd-Carpenter, Chloe Bray, Andrea Brock, Roger Brock, Richard Buxton, Ernest Clark, Jon Coulston, Eleri Cousins, Koen De Temmerman, Veronica della Dora, Tim Duff, Katharine Earnshaw, Lucy Fletcher, Barbara Graziosi, David Greenwood, Stephen Halliwell, Peter Hansen, Tom Harrison, Johannes Haubold, Jon Hesk, Dan Hooley, Sean Ireton, Fergus King, Alice König, Myles Lavan, Achim Lichtenberger, Jeremy McInerney, Georgia Petridou, Alexia Petsalis-Diomidis, Beppe Pezzini, Jonathan Pitches, Verity Platt, Ruben Post, Elaine Rankin, Betsey Robinson, David Gilman Romano, Christopher Schliephake, Sophie Schoess, Rebecca Sweetman, Richard Talbert, Matteo Tauer, Mark Usher, Abigail Walker, John Weeks, Jonathan Westaway, Tim Whitmarsh, Nicolas Wiater, Gareth Williams, and Greg Woolf, all of whom have helped through inspiring conversations, advice on points of detail, help with images, comments on draft chapters, invitations to give talks, and in some cases by spending time with me in the mountains.

I am grateful to all at Princeton University Press, especially to Ben Tate, Josh Drake, Lisa Black, Jill Harris, Jennifer Harris, and to the anonymous readers for their encouragement and wise advice.

Above all, thanks to Alice, Eliza, Rory, and Serena.
