Acknowledgments

This book could not have been completed without the support and encouragement of numerous individuals and organizations. I am particularly indebted to my thesis director, Michael Behiels, for his thoughtful comments, keen insights, and prompt revisions. I have also had the good fortune to receive extensive financial support for this work from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the SSHRCC Federalism and Federations Program, Ontario Graduate Scholarships, the University of Ottawa Department of History’s Gaston Héon and Julian Gwyn scholarships, and the Fonds pour l’émergence des projets de recherche from the Centre de recherche en civilisation canadienne-française.

My research entailed visits to the archives and departmental libraries of six provinces and the federal government and to the archives of many community associations, where I received much-needed help from many dedicated archivists and librarians. I would also like to thank the dozens of individuals who gave me their time and insights in our interviews and who pointed me to new avenues for my research.

During the writing process many people provided invaluable support to me, whether by proofreading sections of my work, letting me bounce ideas off them, or just listening to my long diatribes. In particular, I would like to thank Marcel Martel, Jeff Keshen, Nicole Neatby, Cornelius Jaenen, Chad Gaffield, Donald Davis, Yves Frenette, Sacha Richard, Cynthia Toman, Jean-Pierre Morin, Krista Robertson, Rachel Sheer, and Brenda Zimmerman. I would also like to thank my parents, Jan and Bryan, and my sisters, Catherine and Sarah, who all patiently endured my prolonged explanations of my work and provided emotional support. My path through the Canadian scholarly publication process has been deftly guided by Kyla Madden, Joan Harcourt, and Joan McGilvray at McGill-Queen’s University Press and by two anonymous, but very thoughtful, reviewers of my manuscript. Most importantly, I want to thank my husband, Matthew Kayahara, without whose love and support I might never have finished this book.
