This volume represents the work of many: the participants at the Fleet Historical Conference in Halifax, the presenters of papers, and of course the contributors themselves. The editorial board for the volume included not only the editors, but Dr W.A.C. Douglas, at the time director, Directorate of History, National Defence Headquarters; Dr Roger Sarty, senior historian, National Defence Headquarters; and Dr Marc Milner, Department of History, University of New Brunswick. As well, the book owes its origins to the Maritime Commander’s Advisory Committee on the conference. Its members included not only those on the editorial board, but Ms Marilyn Gurney, director, Maritime Command Museum, Admiralty House, Halifax; and Chief Petty Officer F.G. McBride, RCN (retired), curatorial assistant, Maritime Museum of the Atlantic, Halifax. The conference itself was convened by Commodore David Cogden, chief of staff personnel and training, and organized by staff of the Maritime Warfare School: its commanding officer, Captain(N) Douglas J. McClean, supported by Major Fred Bigelow, and Lieutenant(N) Katherine Kincaid. Our copy-editor, Judith Turnbull, rendered signal service.

Publication of A Nation’s Navy is a joint undertaking between Maritime Command, the Naval Officers Association of Canada, and two academic centres established by the Military and Strategic Studies Programme of the Department of National Defence: the Centre for Foreign Policy Studies of Dalhousie University, Halifax, and the Pacific and Maritime Strategic Studies Group, University of Victoria, Victoria, BC.
