I would like, first of all, to express my profound gratitude to Dr V.J. Boss of McGill University, without whose constant support it would have been impossible to produce this book. In addition, the following people and organizations furnished invaluable aid and assistance at different stages of the research and writing of this work, for which I am indebted to them:

In Canada, I am indebted to my editor, Ron Curtis, without whose aid this work would have been much less readable; to the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council and its Aid to Scholarly Publications Programme; the History Department of McGill University; Dr Helen Anderson and the staff of the Inter-Library Loans Department of McGill’s McLennan Library; Dr Philip Cercone, Dr John Zucchi, and the late Dr Peter Blaney of McGill-Queen’s University Press as well as its editorial staff, and the administrative staff and my colleagues at Nipissing University. In Russia, I was assisted by Professor A.N. Sakharov and L.P. Kolotdinova of the History Institute of the Russian Academy of Sciences; Professors V.G. Osipov and N.N. Lukovnikov of the State University of Tver; I.A. Sakharov, V.A. Feoktistov, director of the Tver’ Centre of Documentation on Modern History, A.A. Lukovkin, senior collaborator of the same centre; M.A. Il'in, director of the State Archive of Tver’ province; and by two German scholars, Dr Jan Foitzik and Dr Carola Tischler, both currently in Berlin. The very early stages of this project can be traced to the Netherlands: I am grateful to Professors W.H. Roobol and M.C. Brands of the Universiteit van Amsterdam and Dr Martin van de Heuvel of Clingendael Institute, and to the late Nico Boterbloem, Johanna Boterbloem-van Bockhoven, Klaas-Jan Boterbloem, and Martin Pluis.

her fine work on preparing the map for publication. Susan Mooney's support was instrumental for the execution of the project during all stages of its preparation; I am especially grateful for her editorial corrections and criticism of the different drafts. Finally, it must be noted that I alone am responsible for any errors or deficiencies in this study.
