Some of the material that appears in this book has appeared in previous forms elsewhere. An earlier version of chapter 1 was published as “A Positive Account of Protention and its Implications for Internal Time-Consciousness,” in Epistemology, Archaeology, Ethics: Current Investigations of Husserl’s Corpus, eds. Pol Vandevelde and Sebastian Luft (London: Continuum, 2010), and is reprinted here by permission of Sarah Campbell and Continuum.

Some parts of chapter 2 found an early airing in “Revisiting the Zahavi-Brough/Sokolowski Debate,” in Husserl Studies 27: 1 [2011], and appear here by permission of the editors.

Some sections of part 3 can be found in “Derrida and the Future(s) of Phenomenology,” Derrida Today 4:1 [2011], and are included here with permission.

Chapter 5 grew out of an earlier project, “Re- Constituting Phenomenology: Continuity in Levinas’s account of Time and Ethics,” that was published in Dialogue: Canadian Philosophical Review 49:2 (2010). Those elements that are similar are reprinted here with permission of Cambridge University Press.

Much of the research for this book was done with support from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada (SSHRC), which I hereby gratefully acknowledge.
