Acknowledgments

For the second edition of this book, I am indebted to Eiko Kosasa who contributed both technical and sisterly support to enable me to finish my revisions on time. For her, a sincere mahalo nui.

In Indian country, mahalo nui to Ward Churchill for his gracious support in the publication of the first edition of this work.

In Hawai'i, aloha nui to David Stannard who has accompanied me on all the journeys; political, intellectual, personal. To Anne Landgraf and Ed Greevy, photographers and political comrades, my deep respect and aloha.

The following articles were first published in these journals and books: "New World Order," appears as "Mālama 'Āina: Take Care of the Land," in Global Visions: Beyond the New World Order (Boston: South End Press, 1993), pp. 127–131; "Racism against Native Hawaiians at the University of Hawai'i: A Personal and Political View," in Amerasia Journal 18:3 (1992); "Kupa'a 'Āina: Native Hawaiian Nationalism in Hawai'i," in Politics and Public Policy in Hawai'i (New York: SUNY Press, 1992); "'Lovely Hula Hands': Corporate Tourism and the Prostitution of Hawaiian Culture," in Border/Lines, no. 23 (1991/1992), 22–34; "The Politics of Academic Freedom as the Politics of White Racism," in Restructuring for Ethnic Peace (Honolulu: University of Hawai'i Institute of Peace, 1991), pp. 11–22; "Politics in the Pacific Islands: Imperialism and Native Self-Determination," in Amerasia Journal 16(1990): 1–20; "From a Native Daughter," in The American

From a Native Daughter

Indian and the Problem of History (New York: Oxford University Press, 1987), pp. 171–179.

The evolution of my thinking owes a great debt to some of the most creative intellectuals and revolutionaries of the twentieth century: Frantz Fanon, Malcolm X, and Ngũgĩ wa Thiong’o. Genealogically, I am indebted to those many chiefs of old, from the Pi’ilani and Kamehameha lines especially, who believed the dignity and inheritance of my Hawaiian people could only be taken in war. I am descended from these chiefs, in whose memory I have written these words.

Haunani-Kay Trask
He’eia, 1999

From a .
Native
Daughter