Ames, Roger T., 17, 101

Analects (Lunyu): Heaven and the Heavenly Way in, 32–33, 36; introduced to Japan, 3–4; on “outer kingliness,” 7; and ren (humaneness) (see Analects [Lunyu] and the concept of humaneness [ren]) (see Analects [Lunyu] and the concept of humaneness [ren]); on ritual, 32, 106; three-year mourning period discussed with Zai Wo, 42, 50, 95–96, 101

Analects (Lunyu) and the concept of humaneness (ren): as a key concept in, 32, 42–43, 45, 121n.31; defined as “loving men” (ai ren), 48; and gong (impartiality), 45, 121n.31; its hierarchical and unequal relationship with lin, 106–107; stimulated by passing by a shrine or the court, 65

Angle, Stephen C., 92

Anscombe, G. E. M., 92, 94

Apel, Karl-Otto, 93

appearance, 13–14, 19, 73

Aristotle: and Feng’s conceptual relativism, 18; practical philosophy traced to, 93; virtue ethics of, 97–100 autonomy: Han Confucians’ theory of the “interaction between Heaven and humanity” viewed as counter to, 36; Kant’s concepts of “autonomy versus heteronomy,” 13, 15–17, 32, 73–75, 93–94, 98, 100–101; and Mencius’ moral philosophy, 15–16, 74, 98–99; Wang Yangming on the relationship between the individual and the community, 90–91

Babbitt, Irving, 6

Berlin, Isaiah, 87

Betti, Emilio, 21

Betzler, Monika, 97–98

Brentano, Franz, 73

Cai Xin’an, 98

Cai Yuanding, 43

Cai Yuanpei, 27–28

Chan, Wing-tsit, 44, 53, 121n.21

Chen Chun, 44

Cheng Hao: classed as a mainstream Neo-Confucian by Mou Zongsan, 16, 43–44, 94, 120n.19; emphasis on physical nature, 61, 69; on the mind of Heaven and Earth, 46–49; on ren, 42, 46–53

Cheng Yi (Yichuan), 47–48; emphasis on physical nature, 58–59, 61, 63, 69; exclusion from mainstream Confucianism by Mou Zongsan, 16, 43–44, 56, 94, 120n.19; “original nature” and “physical nature” viewed as mutually independent concepts, 58–59, 61, 63, 69; on ren, 42, 47, 48, 51–53

Chen Huanzhang, 5

Chen Lai, 120n.17

Chen Yufu, 83–84

Cicero, Marcus Tullius, 29, 42

commiseration, 45, 48, 55, 57–58, 61, 64–67, 101 communitarianism: criticism of liberalism, 9, 88–90; on the individual as an independent subject, 89; and the relationship between the Confucian tradition and democracy, 90–91; representatives of (see MacIntyre, Alasdair; Sandel, Michael; Taylor, Charles) comprehension (zhì), 45–46, 49–51, 55, 57–58, 61, 68, 75

conceptual relativism, 17–19

Confucianism: academic, 9; constitutional (see political Confucianism); in Japan, 1, 3–4, 27, 54; Korean (see four-seven debate between Gi Gobong and Yi Toegye; Korean Confucian Four-Seven Debate; Yi Toegye); life (shengming Ruxue)/inner sagehood

Confucianism (see life Confucianism); mind-and-nature (xinxing Ruxue) (see life Confucianism); New/modern Confucianism/contemporary Confucianism (see Modern New Confucians); and religion (see Confucianism and the question of religion); in Taiwan (see Modern New Confucians; Taiwanese Confucianism); in Vietnam, 1, 4. See also Confucianism, Chinese; Confucianism, traditional; Song-Ming Confucianism

Confucianism and the question of religion: clarified in the “Manifesto” published by the Modern New Confucians, 29–30, 35, 84, 94, 117n.12, 126n.12; Confucian religion (Kong jiao) in Indonesia, 7–8; debated by Catholic missionaries in the late Ming and early Qing, 26–27; Kang Youwei's Confucian religion Movement, 5, 27; quasi-religious functions identified by Liang Shuming, 28; Xu Fuguan on, 26, 31–32, 36–37

Confucianism, Chinese, 24, 54–55, 104; pre-Qin, 16, 31–36, 93, 101; quasi-religious functions identified by Liang Shuming, 28; and the traditional educational system, 2, 3, 8. See also Song-Ming Confucianism

Confucianism, traditional, 9, 106; adaptation to democratic systems (see democracy and Confucianism); dependence on existing political and social systems, 2, 7; moral knowledge emphasized by, 85; restoration to the status of national ideology, 1, 5, 6, 103, 110–111. See also inner sagehood (neisheng)

Confucius: answer to Zigong's question, 49; ethics of conviction and an ethics of responsibility, 107; as the first sage of Confucianism, 54, 80, 104; life of, 3; and the question of religion, 27–29; and religious tradition in the Zhou, 16, 32–36; three-year mourning period discussed with Zai Wo, 42, 50, 95–96, 101. See also Analects (Lunyu) consciousness of sorrow and worry (youhuanyishi), 31

Contemporary New Confucians. See Modern New Confucians

Dai Wang, 80

Davidson, Donald, 18–19
dé Bary, Wm. Theodore, 127n.25 democracy: and individualism, 83; and totalitarianism, 86–89 democracy and Confucianism: and communitarianism, 9, 88–91; debated between Taiwanese liberals and New Confucians, 84–91; Jiang Qing's "political Confucianism," 5–6, 9, 109–111; Mou Zongsan's theory of "developing democracy from Confucianism," 9, 84–85, 111; and Wang Yangming's thought, 79–84, 88–91, 111

Dilthey, Wilhelm, 21–22

Doctrine of the Mean (Zhongyong): and the ethics of autonomy, 16, 93–94; foundation of morality established by, 34; "Heaven" and "the Heavenly Way" in, 33–34, 36, 37, 81; notions of "equilibrium" (zhong) and "harmony" (he), 43

Dong Zhongshu, 104

Eberhard, Johann August, 23
Engels, Friedrich, 87
Esser, Andrea Marlen, 97

ethics: of autonomy (see under autonomy); of consequences (Erfolgethik), 95, 108; of conviction (Gesinnungsethik), 95–96, 104; deontological, 92, 94–101; of heteronomy, 16–17, 74, 93–94, 100; of responsibility (Verantwortungsethik), 102, 104–108; teleological, 92, 95–97; theological, 16; of virtue (see virtue ethics)

Fang Keli, 103
Feng Yaoming (Fung Yiu Ming), 17–19, 115n.12
Feng Youlan, 116n.1, 120n.19
Fichte, Johann G., 15
Fingarette, Herbert, 17, 30 four buddings (siduan): and humaneness/humanity (ren), 55, 57–58, 61, 64, 67–68, 75. See also four-seven debate between Gi Gobong and Yi Toegye; Mencius (Mengzi) and the four buddings (siduan)

Four Refuges, 20

four-seven debate between Gi Gobong and Yi Toegye: and different interpretations of the physical nature held by Zhang Zai, Cheng Yi, and Zhu Xi, 59; Gi Gobong’s “activity of principle” (lidong), 71–72; Gi Gobong’s explanations compared with Zhu Xi’s point of view, 56, 60, 62–66, 70–72, 74–75; and Jeong Jiun’s diagram of the Heavenly Mandate, 59; Yi Toegye’s inability to discern incompatibilities between Zhu Xi and Mencius, 56, 60, 63–65, 67–68; Yi Toegye’s “issuance of principle” (lifa), 71–72; and Yi Yulgok and Seong Ugye’s subsequent discussion, 54–55, 59–60; Zhu Xi’s statement that “the four buddings issue (fa) from principle (li),” 60–62, 64, 70–72

Frankena, William K., 97

Fühlen (to feel), 51, 74

Gadamer, Hans-Georg, 20–21, 93

Gefühl (feeling), 51, 74

Gi Gobong (Daeseung, Myeong-eon), debate with Yi Toegye (see four-seven debate between Gi Gobong and Yi Toegye) gong (impartiality), and ren (humaneness), 42, 45, 52–53

the greater part of self (dati), 66

Gwon Geun, 54

Hadot, Pierre, 8

Hall, David L., 101

Han Yu, 48

harmony (he): and religious consciousness in pre-Qin Confucianism, 35; on Zhu Xi’s old and new interpretations of, 43–44, 120n.17

Hartmann, Nicolai, 73, 101

Hayek, F. A. von, 87

heart-mind (xin), 15–16, 34, 43–45, 52, 56, 101, 104; and Mou Zongsan’s classification

Song-Ming Neo-Confucianism, 16; as the subtlest of material force (qi zhi ling) according to Zhu Xi, 44, 45, 57 heaven (tian): in the Analects (Lunyu), 32–33, 36; in the Doctrine of the Mean (Zhongyong), 33–34, 36, 37, 81; and Earth and all things identified as one, 50, 69, 80–83, 90–91; and ethics of responsibility, 105; and humanistic religion, 29–30; interaction between Heaven and humanity (Tian ren ganying), 36–37; the mind of Heaven and Earth, 45–47, 52–53; Neo-Confucianism developed from ontological assertions about, 16; Zhu Xi on the nature of heaven and earth, 62

Heavenly Mandate, 33–34, 36, 59

Heavenly Way, 33–34, 36

Hegel, Georg Wilhelm Friedrich: Confucius dismissed as inferior to Cicero, 29, 42;

Moralität distinguished from Sittlichkeit, 6–7, 93; “notion” (Begriff) used to refer to the essence or nature of the object, 42, 119n.5; panlogicism of, 86; synthesis of Moralität with Sittlichkeit, 6–7; and totalitarian democracy, 86, 87

Heidegger, Martin, 21, 23–24

hermeneutical circle, 23–24

hermeneutics, 20–25

He Xiu, 104

Hildebrand, Dietrich von, 73

Hu Dayuan (nephew of Hu Hong), 51

Hu Hong, 16, 43, 94

Hu Yunfeng (Bingwen), 72

Huang Huo, 94

Huang Jinxing, 17, 100–101

humaneness/humanity (ren): in the Analects (see Analects [Lunyu] and the concept of humaneness [ren]); and the four buddings (siduan), 55, 57–58, 61, 64, 67–68, 75; and gong (impartiality), 42, 45, 52–53; lack of (bu ren), 50; Liu Shipei on Wang Yangmin’s views of; 80–82; as one of four moral qualities, 45–46; and the practice of sacrificial rituals of Heaven and Earth worship and ancestor worship, 35; stimulus of a child about to fall into a well, 64–66; Zhu Xi, “Treatise on Ren,” 43–48

humaneness/humanity (ren) and perception (jue or zhijue), 45, 49–53; and Xie Liangzuo’s definition of ren, 49–52 humaneness/humanity (ren) and rites/propriety (li): hierarchical and unequal relationship of, 106–107; and subjectivity, 32, 35 humanism, 26, 29–32, 36–37

human nature: and the humanization of pre-Qin Confucianism, 32–36; and Jiang Qiang on mind-and-nature Confucianism, 104–107; Mencius on commiseration and ren/human nature as originally good (Mencius 6A), 48, 51, 52, 58, 67, 81; “objective spirit” in Dilthey’s hermeneutics, 22
Hume, David, 92, 97, 100
Hutcheson, Francis, 100
Ilting, Karl-Heinz, 93
immanence, 18, 31, 33
individualism: Confucian individualism viewed in terms of personalism, 91, 127n.25; as an essential element of democracy, 83; Western views of, 90–91
Indonesia, 7–8
inner sagehood (neisheng), 1–2, 6–7, 104, 111;
place in Confucius’ teachings, 106; Yu Yingshih’s criticism of, 1–2, 6 inner sagehood (neisheng) and “outer kingliness”:
and academic Confucianism, 9; and Hegel’s legal philosophical terminology, 6–7; hierarchical and unequal relationship of,
106–107; modern transformation of, 1, 2–3, 85, 91, 111
institutional Confucianism (zhidu Ruxue). See Confucianism and the question of religion;
political Confucianism (zhengzhi Ruxue) intellectual intuition, 13, 15, 85 issue (fa), 60–62, 64, 70–72, 74–75

Jeong Jiun, 59
Jiang Qing: on constitutional Confucianism, 109– 110; life Confucianism and political Confucianism differentiated by, 1, 5, 103–105, 107, 108, 111, 132n.28; “outer kingliness” emphasized by, 1, 6, 103–107, 110–111; replacement of Western democratic governance with Confucianism promoted, 5–6, 9, 109–111; restoration of Confucian traditions to the status of national ideology promoted by, 1, 5, 6, 103, 110–111. See also political Confucianism (zhengzhi Ruxue)
Johnson, Robert N., 97
jue/zhijue (perception): and humaneness/humanity
(ren), 45, 49–52; multiple meanings of, 49
Kalto, Michael C., 123n.11
Kang Youwei, 5, 27; Confucian Religion
(Kongjiao) of, 5, 27
Kant, Immanuel, inclusion of his political philo-soup in the British of French tradition, 87, 127n.20
Kant, Immanuel—ethics: compared with Weber’s ethics of responsibility, 108; ethics of, deon-tological features of, 94–101; and Hegel’s synthesis of Moralität with Sittlichkeit, 7; Mencius’ ethical viewpoints compared with, 75
Kant, Immanuel—philosophical concepts:
“autonomy versus heteronomy,” 13, 15–17, 32, 73–75, 93–94, 98, 100–101; concepts of “appearance” and “thing-in-itself,” 13, 14–15, 17–20, 73; distinction between “rational” and “historical” knowledge, 20–21, 23–24;
dual framework of feeling and reason, 56, 73–75; and Feng Yaiming’s conceptual relativism, 17–19, 115n.12; “the highest good” propounded by, 35
kingly way of governance (wandao zhengzhi), 5, 109 Kongjiao. See Confucianism and the question of religion
Korean Confucian Four-Seven Debate, x; importance of, 54–55; Kant’s dual framework of feeling and reason compared with, 55, 73–75; phenomenological ethics compared with, 73–75. See also four-seven debate between Gi Gobong and Yi Toegye Korean Confucianism, 1, 3, 7; Cheng-Zhu tradition in, 56
Kuang Zhiren, 17
Leibniz, Gottfried Wilhelm, 23
Lenk, Hans, 93
li (rites). See propriety (li) Li Tong, 43
Liang Qichao, Confucian Religion Movement opposed by, 5, 27
Liang Shuming, 13, 28, 116n.1
liangzhi. See original knowing liberalism: communitarian criticism of, 9, 88–91;
and the debate between “negative liberty” and “positive liberty,” 87–89; representatives of. See Yin Haiguang; Zhang Foquan liberty: negative and positive types of, 86–89; right or capacity to, in Rousseau’s The Social Contract, 81–82; and Wang Yangming’s theory of original knowing, 82–83

Life Confucianism (shengming Ruxue) or mind-and-nature Confucianism (xinxing Ruxue); and the acceptance of outer kingliness by Song and Ming Confucians, 107; and the Confucian tradition, 5, 102, 104–105, 107; and political Confucianism according to Jiang Qing, 5, 103–105, 107, 108, 111, 132n.28

Lin Yusheng, 104, 107

Liu Jishan (Zongzhou), 16, 94

Liu Shipei (Shenshu), 80–83, 89–90

Liu Shuxian (Liu Shu-hsien), 37, 44, 120n.17, 120n.21

Locke, John, 87

Longobardi, Nicholas, 27

Louden, Robert R., 97

Love (ai), 45–50, 52–53, 55, 61, 81, 101

Lu Xiangshan (Jiuyuan), 16, 82, 94

Lübbe, Hermann, 93

Lunyu. See Analects

MacIntyre, Alasdair, 88, 92

Marx, Karl and Marxism: and the revival of Confucianism as the official ideology of the Chinese people, 5, 103; and totalitarian democracy, 87

Material force (qi): heart-mind (xin) as the subtlest type of (qi zhi ling) according to Zhu Xi, 44, 45, 57; and jue (perception), 52; numinous of material force (qi zhi jingshu), 57; and Zhu Xi on the the four buddings, 60–62, 65–66, 68–69, 71–72, 74; and Zhu Xi’s threefold anthropological structure, 44, 56–59, 61, 74

Mencius (Mengzi): on commiseration and ren/human nature as originally good (Mencius 6A), 48, 51, 52, 58, 67, 81; ethics of autonomy, 15–16, 74, 93, 94; ethics of conviction and an ethics of responsibility in, 107; his sayings viewed as doctrinal and not religious, 27; life of, 3; and political Confucianism, 104; and the second sage of Confucianism, 54

Mencius (Mengzi), 7A: “Heavenly Way” interpreted by Xu Fuguan, 34; on the person of ren, 48; on understanding the mind of Heaven (Mencius 7A), 52

Mencius (Mengzi) and moral philosophy: ethics of autonomy, 15–16, 74, 98–99. See also Mencius (Mengzi) and the “four buddings” (siduan)

Mencius (Mengzi) and the “four buddings” (siduan): defined in Mencius 2A.6, 48, 55, 57; Kantian “moral sense” compared with, 55, 100–101; Zhu Xi’s explanation of, 56–58, 60–61, 72, 75. See also four-seven debate between Gi Gobong and Yi Toegye

Metaphysics of morals, 15. See also Moralität and Sittlichkeit; morality

Mind-and-nature Confucianism (xinxing Ruxue). See life Confucianism (shengming Ruxue)

Mind of Heaven and Earth, 45–47, 52

the minor part of self (xiaoti), 66

Modern New Confucians, 6, 13, 31, 84, 93, 102, 109; “Manifesto” published by, 29–30, 35, 84, 94, 117n.12, 126n.12; on negative and positive liberty, 88; theory of “developing democracy from Confucianism” created by, 9, 13; “wandering soul” metaphor used by Yu Yingshi, 1–3. See also Mou Zongsan; Tang Junyi; Xu Fuguan; Zhang Junmai

Moralität and Sittlichkeit: distinguished by Hegel, 6–7, 93; inner sagehood and “outer kingliness” compared with, 6–7, 92; and moral value in deontological ethics, 95–97

Moral philosophy: and Chinese ethical and moral, 28–31; “four buddings” viewed as types of moral feelings, 55; of the Heavenly Mandate, 33–34; and Jiang Qing’s political Confucianism, 105, 111; and Mencius’ ethics of autonomy, 15–16, 74, 98–99; and Mou Zongsan’s defense of Kant, 24–25; opposition to making moral knowledge the foundation of democracy, 83–87; as a substitution for religion, 28–31; unity of moral knowledge and action advanced by Wang Yangming, 16. See also Mencius (Mengzi) and the “four buddings” (siduan); Moralität and Sittlichkeit; virtue ethics

Mou Zongsan: on the Cheng brothers’ philosophical differences, 16, 43–44, 56, 93–94, 120n.19; “developing democracy from Confucianism” theory created by, 9, 84–85, original knowing (liangzhi): Mencius on, 67; Mou Zongsan on, 15, 84–85, 111, 126n.13; Wang Yangming’s theory of, 16, 79–84, 89–90, 111 original mind (benxin), 15, 50, 52, 66–67, 74, 75, 111 original nature (benran zhi xing/yili zhi xing/tianzhi zhi xing): goodness derived from by Wang Yangming, 81–82; Mencius on the goodness of, 67–68; and physical nature (qizhi zhi xing), 58–59, 61–63, 69; and Zhu Xi’s threefold anthropological structure, 44, 56–58, 69, 74 outer kingliness (waiwang): connection to inner sagehood (see inner sagehood [neisheng] and “outer kingliness”); emphasized by Jiang Qing, 1, 6, 103–107, 110–111; place in Confucius’ teachings, 106–107. See also political Confucianism (zhengzhi Ruxue) nature (xing): and the Confucians’ idea of the “inner sagehood,” 91; Mencius on understanding one’s own nature, 34, 52; “nature” in general as in Mother Nature distinguished from, 123n.4; and the “practical moral subject” in Confucian ethics, 84; ren identified with by Cheng Yi, 47–48; thesis that “the nature issues forth as the feelings,” 70–72; and Zhang Shi’s principle of love, 46–47, 53; and Zhu Xi’s threefold anthropological structure, 44, 56–58, 74. See also human nature; original nature

New Confucians in Hong Kong and Taiwan. See Modern New Confucians
Nylan, Michael, 41

O’Neill, Onora S., 97

qi. See material force (qi)

Qian Mu, 13, 114n.1, 116n.1, 120n.17
Quine, Willard van Orman, 17–18

Rappe, Guido, 99
Rapp, John, 88
religion: Aristotelian “virtue ethics,” 92, 94, 98; clarified in the “Manifesto” published by the Modern New Confucians, 29–30, 35, 84, 94, 117n.12, 126n.12; morality as a substitution for, 28–31. See also Confucianism and the question of religion religiousness, 31–32, 35, 37

ren (humaneness). See humaneness/humanity (ren) reverence (jing), 31, 33, 58, 64–65

Ricci, Matteo, 26–27
Riedel, Manfred, 93 righteousness (yi), 35, 45–46, 50, 55, 57–58, 61, 68, 75, 95
Ritter, Joachim, 93
Rosemont, Jr., Henry, 17
Rousseau, Jean-Jacques, 80–82, 87
Russell, Bertrand, 22

Sandel, Michael, 88, 89, 90
Sato Hitoshi, 44
Scheler, Max, 51, 73–74, 101
Schiller, Friedrich, 27, 73
Schleiermacher, F. E. D., 20–22
Seong Ugye (Hon), 54–56, 59–60, 70–72 seven feelings (qiqing), 54–55, 59–72, 74–75. See also four-seven debate between Gi Gobong and Yi Toegye Shangdi, 32

shengming Ruxue. See life Confucianism
Shen Qingsong (Vincent Shen), 94, 128n.8
Sherman, Nancy, 97
Shu Jingnan, 120n.17
Shun, 66–67, 81
Silber, John R., 95
Sim, May, 92
Sima Qian, 104
Singapore and Malaysia, 1, 7

Sittlichkeit (the ethical, social life), 6–7, 93
Slote, Michael, 92, 97, 100
Socrates, 22, 41, 43

Song-Ming Confucianism: evaluated and classified by Mou Zongsan, 16–17, 43–44, 93–94; of Hu Hong, 16, 43, 91; and the idea of “outer kingliness,” 107; relation between Heaven and humanity, 37; relationship between original nature and physical nature in Zhu-Xi’s thought, 58–59. See also Zhu Xi
Strauss, Leo, 93

Taiwanese Confucianism: debate with liberals over Confucianism and democracy, 84–86; deontological ethics discussed by scholars of, 98–99; Huang Jinxing’s criticism of Mou Zongsan, 17, 100–101; teaching on the Four Books of Confucianism, 8. See also Modern New Confucians
Talmon, Jacob Leib, 87
Tang Junyi, 9, 13, 26, 28–29, 31, 34–37, 84
Taylor, Charles, 88–89
text-interpretative approach (wenxian tujing), 23–24 thing-in-itself, 13–15, 17–20, 73 totalitarianism, 86–89
transcendence, 18, 31, 33
Tu Wei-ming, 37
utilitarianism, 92, 98
Van Norden, Bryan W., 92, 99
Vietnam, 1, 4

virtue ethics: of Aristotle, 92, 94, 97–101; and Jiang Qing’s political Confucianism, 102–107, 109–111; and Kant’s ethics, 97–101; in pre-Qin Confucianism, 32, 35, 101; revival of contemporary Western views of, 92, 94; sentimentalist, 92, 97, 100. See also four boudings (siduan); four-seven debate between Gi Gobong and Yi Toegye; Korean Confucian Four-Seven Debate; Moralität und Sittlichkeit; morality

Wang Bangxiong, 83–84
Wang Guowei, 27
Wang In, 3
Wang Maohong, 120n.17, 120n.21
Wang Yangmings: on goodness as coming from the original nature, 81–82; and Mou Zongsan’s evaluation and classification of Song-Ming Confucianism, 16, 94; on the relationship between the individual and the community, 90–91; theory of original knowing (liang-zhi), 16, 79–84, 89–90, 111
Weber, Max, 102, 104, 107–108, 111
Wertfühlen (feeling of value), 51, 74, 101
Xenophon, 22
Xie Liangzuo, 49–52
xin. See heart-mind
Xiong Jie, 44
Xiong Shili, 13, 28, 34, 116n.1
Xu Fuguan, 26, 28, 31–34, 36–37, 84, 88, 90; Heavenly Mandate interpreted by, 33–34, 36; and Modern New Confucianism, 9, 13, 28–29; on the religious dimension of Confucianism, 26, 31–32, 36–37; theory of “developing democracy from Confucianism” created by, 9
Xunzi, 16, 93, 98–99, 104
Yan Fu, 5
Yang Shi, 49
Yang Tingdong, 80, 82
Yao, 81
Yi Toegye (Hwang): debate with Gi Gobong (see four-seven debate between Gi Gobong and Yi Toegye); four buddings distinguished from the seven feelings by, 60–62, 74–75
Yi Yulgok (I), 54–56, 59–60, 70, 71–72
Yijing. See Book of Changes
Yin Haiguang, 9; disciple Zhang Hao, 91; on the morality as unable to serve as the foundation for democracy, 85–86; as a representative of liberalism, 84
Yu Yang-shih (Yu Yingshi), 6, 107, 127n.25; on the connectedness of “inner sagehood” with “outer kingliness,” 1–2, 6; on Qian Mu, 114n.1; on Song and Ming Confucianism’s acceptance of outer kingliness, 107; “wandering soul” metaphor used to describe modern Confucianism, 1–3, 4
Yuan Shikai, 5
Zai Wo, 42, 50, 95–96, 101
Zeng Chunhai, 83–84
Zhang Foquan: on the morality as unable to serve as the foundation for democracy, 85–87; as a representative of liberalism, 84
Zhang Hao, 91
Zhang Junmai, 9, 13, 28–29, 84, 116n.1; and Modern New Confucianism, 13, 28–29, 84
Zhang Shi (Jingfu): “equilibrium” (zhong) and “harmony” (he) debated with Zhu Xi, 43–44; principle of love, 46–48, 52–53; ren debated with Zhu Xi, 42–48, 50–53, 121n.21
Zhang Shi (Jingfu), works: Confucian Sayings about Ren (Zhu Si yan ren), 42–43; “Treatise on Ren” (Ren shuo), his authorship of, 44, 53, 121n.21
Zhang Taiyan, 27
Zhang Zai, 16, 58–59, 61, 63, 69, 94
Zheng Kexue, 44
zhengzhi Ruxue. See political Confucianism (zhengzhi Ruxue) zhidu Ruxue (institutional Confucianism). See political Confucianism (zhengzhi Ruxue)
Zhou Dunyi (Lianxi), 16, 36, 94
Zhu Xi: as the basis for official education in Japan, 4; distinction between “original nature” and “physical nature,” 58–59, 62–63, 69, 74; “equilibrium and harmony” interpreted by, 43–44, 120n.17; ethics of heteronomy, 16–17, 74–75, 94; explanation of Mencius’ “heart of the four buddings,” 56–58, 72; on “the four buddings issue (fa) from principle (li),” 60–62, 65–66, 68–69, 71–72, 74; and Korean Confucianism, 3; on the mind of Heaven and Earth, 45–47; “Reply to Chen Qizhi,” 65–66; threefold anthropological structure, 44, 56–59, 74; “Treatise on Ren” (Ren shuo), 43–48, 121n.21, 121; and Wang Yangming’s theory of original knowing (liangzhi), 79, 84. See also Mou Zongsan and Zhu Xi
Zhu Xi on heart-mind (xin): defined as the subtlest of material force (qi zhi ling) by, 44; in his threefold anthropological structure, 44, 56–58, 74; and jue (perception), 52; ontological position debated with Zhang Shi, 45, 57
Zhuangzi: “being rooted in itself” (ziben zigen) in, 28; “inner sagehood, outer kingliness” in, 6
Zisi, 63, 69
Zixia, 106
About the Author

MING-HUEI LEE, born in Taipei, is research fellow at the Institute of Chinese Literature and Philosophy, Academia Sinica, Taipei. He is also professor at the Graduate Institute of National Development, National Taiwan University, Taipei, and at the Graduate Institute of Philosophy, National Central University, Chungli, Taiwan.

About the Editor

DAVID JONES is professor of philosophy at Kennesaw State University. He is editor of Comparative and Continental Philosophy, founding editor of East-West Connections (2000–2013), and editor of the Series on Comparative and Continental Philosophy.