Contents

Series Editor’s Preface  ix
Acknowledgments   xi

Introduction
Robert Ji-Song Ku, Monika Mehta, and S. Heijin Lee  1

Part I: Queering Routes and Roots  15

1  The Softening of Butches: The Adoption of Korean “Soft” Masculinity among Thai Toms
Dredge Byung’chu Kang-Nguyen  19

2  Between Screens and Bodies: New Queer Performance in India
Kareem Khubchandani  37

3  K-pop in Mexico: Flash Mobs, Media Stunts, and the Momentum of Global Mutual Recognition
Erica Vogel  55

4  Making the Past Present: Intertextuality and Pastiche in Bollywood Neo-Noir
Gohar Siddiqui  72
Part II: Relocating Stardom  89

5  The Politics and Promises of “Gangnam Style”
   S. Heijin Lee  97

6  Ranveer Singh’s “Chichorapan”: Habitus, Masculinity, and Stardom
   Praseeda Gopinath  121

7  Consolidating Bollywood: Spectacularity without Stardom
   Akshaya Kumar  138

8  Imitating Flower Boy Stars: K-pop Male Stars and Assembling New Female Masculinity in South Korea
   Layoung Shin  155

Part III: (Not) Crossing Over  171

9  Expanding Diasporic Identity through Bollywood Dance in London
   Kristen Rudisill  177

10  From Seoul to Cinemascapes: The Private Lives of Contemporary Cine-Tourism in (and out) of India
    Samhita Sunya  195

11  Hallyu in Hollywood: South Korean Actors in the United States
    Valerie Soe  209

12  Sassy Girls: A Transnational Reading of the Monstrous Girlfriend in South Korea, India, and the United States
    Jane Chi Hyun Park  227

Part IV: Mediating Circuits and Markets  245

13  Imagining Virtual Audiences: Digital Distribution, Global Media, and Online Fandom
    Monika Mehta and Lisa Patti  249
Solee I. Shin  268

15  Toward a Global Community: Dreaming High with K-pop
Hae Joo Kim  282

16  Thinking Outside the Canvas: The Lost Art of Cinema Billboards in South Korea and India
Roald Maliangkay  303

Bibliography  321

Contributors  335

Index  339