The Edinburgh Studies in Pragmatics series represents a comprehensive new endeavour to cover all the main areas of pragmatics, offering a systematic mosaic of pragmatics by including studies of individual areas that together create a panoramic overview of the field. The series covers the core topics but also ventures beyond this to examine language use across social, institutional, interpersonal and political contexts and to cover areas such as sociopragmatics, corpus pragmatics and pragmalinguistics and the interface between pragmatics and other disciplines. By publishing innovative and leading work, the series aims to capture the diversity of pragmatics as a field of research, and individual volumes contribute to key critical debates in pragmatics.

The series editors

Juliane House is Professor Emerita at the University of Hamburg, Germany, where she was a founding member of the Research Centre on Multilingualism. She is currently a Professor at the HUN-REN Hungarian Research Centre for Linguistics. She is also Distinguished University Professor and Director of the Doctoral Program of Language and Communication at Hellenic American University, Nashua, USA, and Athens, Greece.

Dániel Z. Kádár is Qihang Chair Professor and Director of the Center for Pragmatic Research at Dalian University of Foreign Languages, China. He is also Research Professor at the HUN-REN Hungarian Research Centre for Linguistics, Hungary, and Professor of English Linguistics at the University of Maribor. He is also an ordinary member of Academia Europaea (MAE).

Find out more about the series at edinburghuniversitypress.com/series-edinburgh-studies-in-pragmatics.