Acknowledgements

This book is a revised version of my PhD thesis, which I completed at the University of Melbourne in 2017. I am indebted to a number of people who assisted me throughout the process of writing my thesis. First and foremost, I would like to thank Professor Abdullah Saeed, my supervisor, who guided me through this project with patience, understanding and his invaluable advice. This book could not have been written without his endless support and help. With my deepest appreciation, I thank him. I would also like to express my gratitude to my committee members, Dr Muhammad Kamal and Dr Abdul-Samad Abdullah, for their support throughout this project. I am thankful to them for their insightful feedback and invaluable comments.

Some parts of this book have already been published in scholarly journals of Islamic and Middle Eastern studies. An earlier version of Chapter 4 was published in Islam and Christian–Muslim Relations (Vol. 28, No. 3, 2017) entitled ‘ʿAbdolkarim Soroush’s Approach to “Experience” as a Basis for His Reform Project’. A shorter version of Chapter 5, except for the section ‘The sources of Shabestari’s theory of revelation’, was published in Arabica (Vol. 63, No. 6, 2016) under the title ‘A Contemporary Muslim Scholar’s Approach to Revelation: Moḥammad Mojitahed Šabestarī’s Reform Project’. An earlier version of Chapter 6, except for the section ‘The sources of Abu Zayd’s ideas about revelation’, was published in Islamic Quarterly (Vol. 60, No. 2, 2016) entitled ‘From Revelation to Interpretation: Abu Zayd’s Approach’. A few parts of the arguments presented in this book related to the political discourses of Abdolkarim Soroush, Muhammad Mujtahed Shabestari and Nasr Hamid Abu Zayd have been published in Digest of Middle East Studies (Vol. 25, No. 2, 2016) under the title ‘The Political Discourses of three Contemporary Muslim Scholars: Secular, Nonsecular, or Pseudosecular?’. And finally, some parts of the book related to the theories of revelation presented by Fazlur Rahman, Soroush, Shabestari and Abu Zayd have been published in Culture and Religion (Vol. 20, No. 1, 2019) under the title ‘Towards a Humanistic Approach to the Quran: New Direction in Contemporary Islamic Thought’. I would like to thank the editors of the aforementioned journals for giving me the permission to reproduce parts of my articles in this book.

I am also grateful to the anonymous external reviewers of Edinburgh University Press (EUP), whose comments significantly improved the manuscript. The staff at EUP deserve special thanks for their kind support for publishing this book. In particular, I am grateful to Nicola Ramsey, the publisher for EUP’s Islamic & Middle Eastern Studies list, and Adela Rauchova, EUP’s Commissioning Editor on modern Middle East and Arabic literature. Finally, I thank my family members, whose support and patience were essential to finish this work. Words cannot express my debt of gratitude to them.
