List of Figures

Figure 6.1  Bilingual patterns in the Dai ethnic group —— 100
Figure 6.2  Patterns of writing system use among ethnic Dai —— 100
Figure 6.3  Adoption of bilingualism among ethnic Dai for work and public affairs —— 101
Figure 6.4  Bilingualism in Dai people’s daily life —— 102
Figure 6.5  Proficient bilingual speakers and writing system users and their ages —— 103
Figure 6.6  Proficient bilingual speakers and their educational levels —— 104
Figure 6.7  Proficient bilingual speakers and their occupations —— 105
Figure 6.8  Gender ratios and places of residence of proficient bilingual speakers —— 105
Figure 9.1  Categories of language variation —— 136
Figure 11.1  Structural categories of nicknames in Dai (“~” indicates “without stable formation”) —— 169
Figure 11.2  Structural categories of Buddhist names in Dai (“Ø” indicates a zero form, “~” indicates names without stable forms) —— 175
Figure 11.3  Structural categories of names used on resuming secular life in Dai (“Ø” indicates a zero form, “~” represents a term without stable form) —— 180

https://doi.org/10.1515/9781501511837-204