List of Maps

Map 1.1 The topography of London and the Roman city, showing Cripplegate fort, the amphitheater, forum basilica, the principal roads of the Roman period, and the location of the late/sub-Roman martyrium at St. Martin-in-the-Fields — 26

Map 1.2 Distribution of select artefacts of fifth- to seventh-century date found in the walled city and the location of St. Paul’s — 28

Map 1.3 The relationship between Lundenwic and Lundenburg — 30

Map 1.4 Distribution of select seventh- to ninth-century artefacts, haga, burh, and other potentially middle Anglo-Saxon place-names and features — 33

Map 1.5 Gustav Milne’s reconstruction of London’s street grid in the tenth century (after Milne with Cohen Excavations at Medieval Cripplegate, London, fig. 140) — 42

Map 1.6 (a) Streets dated to the late ninth to tenth centuries. (b) Streets dated to the eleventh century (after Horsman et al., Aspects of Saxo-Norman London I, figs 109 and 110) — 44

Map 1.7 The chronology of waterfront development along the north bank of the River Thames (after Milne, The Port of Medieval London, fig. 7) — 45

Map 1.8 The location of Number 1 Poultry, Guildhall, and Bull Wharf — 46

Map 1.9 The Guildhall amphitheater in the tenth and eleventh centuries; note the ward and parish boundaries (after Bowsher et al., The London Guildhall, fig. 13) — 50

Map 1.10 Churches with fabric characteristic of the earlier eleventh century (open circles) and dedications indicative of Scandinavian foundations (after Milne with Cohen, Excavations at Medieval Cripplegate, London, fig. 144, with additions) — 53

Map 1.11 The position of London Bridge in relation to the city and to the burh at Southwark (after Watson et al., London Bridge, fig. 27) — 59

Map 3.1 Finds of early Anglo-Saxon spearheads from the Thames in the Museum of London collection — 83

Map 3.2 Finds of late Anglo-Saxon/Viking-Age weapons from the Thames in the Museum of London collection — 84

Map 4.1 Viking raids in the 980s — 98

Map 4.2a The Viking army in England 991–994 — 99

Map 4.2b The Viking army in England 997–1000 — 100

Map 4.2c The Viking army in England 1001–1005 — 101

Map 4.3 The Viking raid of 1006–1007 — 103

Map 4.4a Thorkell’s army in England 1009–1010 — 104

Map 4.4b Thorkell’s army in England 1010 — 105

https://doi.org/10.1515/9781501513336-205
Map 4.4c  Thorkell’s army in England 1011–1012 — 106
Map 4.5  Swein Forkbeard’s invasion 1013–1014 — 108
Map 4.6  England 1014–1015: Intermission — 109
Map 4.7  Cnut’s invasion 1015–1016 — 110
Map 4.8  Edmund Ironside and Cnut 1016 — 111
Map 8.1  The estate at Drayton (Hants) granted to New Minster, Winchester, in 1019, with places named in the text. The boundaries of the Domesday hundreds and other eleventh-century vills are marked with regard to information in the Alecto Historical Editions Domesday Book maps. (The uncertainties of boundaries and the placement of vills have not been represented in this map, and this should only be taken as an approximate guide.) — 184
Map 10.1  Plan of Late Saxon Winchester (north at the top). © Martin Biddle — 214
Map A  The empire of Cnut the Great (1016–1035) — 303
Map 14.1a  The great North–South route running down through the Jutland peninsula – the Military Road or Ox Road begins in Viborg. After Matthiessen, Hærvejen, 1930 — 307
Map 14.1b  All roads lead to Viborg, meeting in a fan-shape north and south of the town. After Matthiessen, Viborg-veje, 1933. Drawing Svend Kaae 2004 — 308
Map 14.2  On the flat foreland below the slopes leading up to the plateau lies the Søndersø area, and close by stands a pronounced 12 m high earthen bank, Borgvold, which rises up from an island in the tunnel valley. Drawing Lars Agersnap Larsen 2016 — 308
Map 14.4a–c  The probable extent of the Søndersø settlement around a: 1020; b: 1050; c: 1100, superimposed onto a contour map, where modern earthworks have disturbed the historical landscape – the dam and roadway running down through the center of the illustration and back-fill under the Golf Hotel’s south-eastern corner. A: Brænderigården; B: Golf Hotel, Viborg; C: Borgvold. Drawing Sara Heil Jensen — 332
Map 14.5  Venetian portolan chart from 1339 with the Latin text, “vuiberge hic coronatur rex dacie” – Viborg here the Danish king is crowned — 334
Map B  Denmark, Norway, Sweden in Cnut’s reign (1016–1035) — 353
Map 18.1  Western Slavonic territories in Cnut’s reign (1016–1035) — 402
Map 20.1  Clement dedications in Northern Europe — 432
Map 20.2  Route to Kyiv from Scandinavia via the Baltic — 435
Map 20.3  Map of Kyiv (Kiev) in the Tenth and Eleventh Centuries — 437
Map 20.4  Map of Trondheim, Norway, showing the location of St. Clement’s Church (KLEMEMS KIRKE) close by the royal residence and warf (Kongs Gaard og Brygge) at the time of Olaf Haraldsson (1016–28). Based on Blom (1956), 228 — 439
Map 20.5  Site of St. Clements in Gamlebyen, Oslo, ca. 1300 — 440
Map 20.6  Early urban centres in Denmark with Clement churches — 442
Map 20.7  Map of Roskilde Showing Site of St. Clement’s Church — 445
Map 20.8  Urban churches dedicated to St. Clement in England — 447