CONTENTS

Acknowledgments   ix

Note on Transliteration and Translation   xi

1. Geography, History, Trope: Facts on the Ground   1
2. Before the Provinces: Pastoral and Anti-Pastoral in Pushkin’s Countryside   33
3. Inventing Provincial Backwardness, or “Everything is Barbarous and Horrid” (Herzen, Sologub, and Others)   54
4. “This is Paris itself!”: Gogol in the Town of N   79
5. “I Do Beg of You, Wait, and Compare!”: Goncharov, Belinsky, and Provincial Taste   100
7. Transcendence Deferred: Women Writers in the Provinces   142
8. Melnikov and Leskov, or What is Regionalism in Russia?   164
9. Centering and Decentering in Dostoevsky and Tolstoy   186
10. “Everything Here is Accidental”: Chekhov’s Geography of Meaninglessness   208
11. In the End: Shchedrin, Sologub, and Terminal Provinciality   229
12. Conclusion: The Provinces in the Twentieth Century   243

List of Abbreviations   257

Notes   259

Bibliography   317

Index   333