Figures

6.1 Central government debt outstanding and debt growth 113
6.2 Breakdown of China’s gross fixed capital formation 115
6.3 Local government debt 118
6.4 China’s credit levels 121
6.5 SOE debt 123
8.1 The composition of China’s shadow banking by business sector 139
8.2 Main players and businesses of shadow banking in China 140
8.3 Comparative view of shadow banking activity by countries 142
8.4 Share of formal credit (RMB loan) and shadow credit in total social financing 148
8.5 ROE and annual profit growth of the Big Four 148
8.6 Growth of new shadow credit compared with new RMB credit in the financial system 150
8.7 Large banks funding small banks and NBFIs in the interbank market 151
8.8 Annual transaction value of mobile payments in China 153
9.1 Selective channeling and sectoral regulation 182
9.2 Composition of aggregate financing to the real economy in China 184
9.3 Growth rates of shadow credit and total renminbi credit 185
9.4 WMPs by banks, outstanding and growth 186
9.5 Recent business models of shadow banking 187
9.6 TBRs involving WMPs 188
9.7 TBRs involving banks’ proprietary funds 188
10.1 Sectoral breakdown of total non-financial-sector debt in China 196
10.2 Increasing leverage and falling profits 199
10.3 China’s household debt 201
10.4 Breakdown of household debt in China 202
10.5 Total nonfinancial debt and nominal GDP growth in China 204
10.6 Trends in the ratio of pre-stress credit to GDP 207
10.7 Bank liabilities 209
10.8 Share of deposit growth in overall augmented banking liabilities 210
11.1 Demand-side contribution to GDP growth 220
11.2 Internal rebalancing: investment, consumption, and GDP 221
11.3 Profitability: SOEs vs. private companies 233
11.4 Destination of corporate loans by ownership type in formal sector 236
11.5 COVID-19 and rebalancing 240