

CONTRIBUTORS

Richard Breen is Professor of Sociology and Fellow of Nuffield College, University of Oxford. He works mainly on social stratification and inequality, quantitative methods, and formal models. He has held visiting positions throughout Europe, including, most recently, at the WZB, Berlin, the University of Trento, and SFI, Copenhagen. He is a Fellow of the British Academy, a Fellow of the European Academy of Sociology, and a Member of the Royal Irish Academy and of Academia Europaea.

Walter Müller is Emeritus Professor of Sociology at Mannheim University. He was a cofounder and later director of the Mannheim Centre for European Social Research (MZES) and is a member of the German National Academy of Sciences Leopoldina and of the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences. He has published widely on comparative social stratification, educational inequality, and social mobility.

Carlo Barone is Professor at the Observatoire Sociologique du Changement at Sciences Po. His research interests focus on educational inequalities, social mobility, and the application of field experiments in educational research.

Eline Berkers is currently a PhD student in the department of Sociology at Tilburg University. She worked on this book chapter as part of an internship she did during her research masters in Social and Behavioral Sciences at Tilburg, which she recently finished. Her research interests include social inequality, human capital, and mental and physical health.

Fabrizio Bernardi is Professor of Sociology at the European University Institute, Florence, Italy and Chair of the European Consortium for Sociological Research. He is the author of many publications on educational inequality, family demography, life course, and methods of event history analysis. In 2016 he coedited (with Gabriele Ballarino) Education, Occupation and Social Origin: A Comparative Analysis of the Transmission of Socio-Economic Inequalities (Edward Elgar, Cheltenham).

Julie Falcon is a scientific collaborator at the Swiss Federal Statistical Office, Neuchâtel, where she works on the LABB project which analyzes educational trajectories and school to work transition in Switzerland. She is also a research associate at the Institute for Adult Learning, Singapore where she is involved in research dealing with the employment vulnerability of tertiary graduates. She holds a PhD from the University of Lausanne (2013) and her research interests include social stratification, educational inequality, intergenerational social mobility and life course research.

Carlos J. Gil-Hernández is PhD researcher at the Department of Political and Social Sciences (SPS) of the European University Institute (EUI) in Florence, Italy. He graduated in MSc studies at Pompeu Fabra University. His research interests include child development, educational inequalities, intergenerational social mobility, and social policies. He has worked as research assistant in international projects on the European Values Survey, and consultant for Eurofound. He has published his work in journals such as Sociology of Education, Research in Social Stratification and Mobility, and Demographic Research.

Raffaele Guetto is Assistant Professor in Demography at the University of Florence. His research interests include social demography, social stratification, and inequality. Some of his works have been published in Demographic Research, European Sociological Review, European Journal of Population, International Migration Review, and Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies.

Florian R. Hertel is a postdoctoral researcher in the Socioeconomics Department at the University of Hamburg. He studies social stratification and mobility from a comparative perspective, the educational causes of inequality, and the effect of inequality on political activity. His work has appeared in publications including Research in Social Stratification and Mobility (with Fabrizio Bernardi and Gordey Yastrebov) and Social Forces (with Fabian T. Pfeffer).

Jan O. Jonsson is Official Fellow of Nuffield College, Oxford, Professor of Sociology at the Swedish Institute for Social Research, and Fellow of the Swedish Royal Academy of Science. His research interests are social stratification, including educational inequality, social mobility, and poverty. On ethnic integration, he recently co-edited Growing up in Diverse Societies (Oxford University Press, 2018).

Ruud Luijkx is Associate Professor of Sociology at Tilburg University, Associate Member of Nuffield College, Oxford University, and Research Fellow at the Dipartimento di Sociologia e Ricerca Sociale, Università di Trento, Italy. His research interests are comparative survey methodology, quantitative research techniques, and social stratification. He is Chair of the Methodology Group of the European Values Study and has published in journals including American Journal of Sociology, European Sociological Review, and Social Science Research.

Fabian T. Pfeffer is Associate Professor in the Department of Sociology and Research Associate Professor in the Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan. He is the Founding Director of the Center for Inequality Dynamics as well as Co-Investigator of the Panel Study of Income Dynamics. His research investigates social inequality and its maintenance across time and generations. Recent publications include articles on wealth inequality and its reproduction in Demography, Social Forces (with Alexandra Killewald), and the American Sociological Review (with Martin Höllsten).

Reinhard Pollak is Professor of Sociology at the University of Mannheim, Germany, and Head of the Department “Monitoring Society and Social Change” at Gesis, Leibniz Institute of the Social Sciences, Mannheim. His research focuses on social stratification in an internationally and historically comparative perspective, in particular social mobility and educational inequalities, adult education, and class-based gender inequalities.

Louis-André Vallet is Research Professor at the Centre national de la recherche scientifique (CNRS) and works at Sciences Po in Paris (Center for Studies in Social Change and Laboratory for Interdisciplinary Evaluation of Public Policies). In his recent work, he has studied temporal trends in social mobility, social fluidity, and inequality of educational opportunity in France during the twentieth century. He has been on the boards of journals including Acta Sociologica and Social Forces, and was elected chief editor of the Revue française de sociologie in 2014.

This page intentionally left blank