CONTEMPORARY ISSUES IN ASIA AND THE PACIFIC

Muthiah Alagappa, Series Editor

A collaborative effort by Stanford University Press and the East-West Center, this series focuses on issues of contemporary significance in the Asia Pacific region, most notably political, social, cultural, and economic change. The series seeks books that focus on topics of regional importance, on problems that cross disciplinary boundaries, and that have the capacity to reach academic and other interested audiences.

The East-West Center is an education and research organization established by the U.S. Congress in 1960 to strengthen relations and understanding among the peoples and nations of Asia, the Pacific, and the United States. The Center contributes to a peaceful, prosperous, and just Asia Pacific community by serving as a vigorous hub for cooperative research, education, and dialogue on critical issues of common concern to the Asia Pacific region and the United States. Funding for the Center comes from the U.S. government, with additional support provided by private agencies, individuals, foundations, corporations, and the governments of the region.

The publication of Southeast Asia in Political Science: Theory, Region, and Qualitative Analysis marks a transition for the Contemporary Issues in Asia and the Pacific (CIAP) series from the editorship of Muthiah Alagappa to a new editorial board, with John Sidel and Geoffrey White as series co-editors, and Sheila Smith, Kellee Tsai, and Peter Xenos as fellow members. This volume is the final publication in a distinguished list of books to appear under Muthiah's editorship. With his leadership from 1999 to 2006 the series took on a new visibility and importance, producing a robust list of distinguished work. The success of the series is due in no small measure to Muthiah's ability to actively encourage younger scholars such as the contributors to this new edited volume and bring their work to a broad readership. In 2006 Muthiah stepped down as editor of the CIAP series to pursue his own research and writing as a Distinguished Senior Fellow of the East-West Center. Mindful of Muthiah's intellectual vision and high standard for scholarly work, the CIAP editorial board looks forward to promoting fresh new efforts to understand the dynamic, ever-changing landscape of the Asia-Pacific in the years ahead. As we do, we want to acknowledge our gratitude for Muthiah Alagappa's hard work as series editor, and the enduring legacies he created for the series.
