This book began as a study conducted during my M.A. and doctoral studies in the Department of Jewish History at Tel Aviv University. The first form of the study was a doctoral dissertation submitted to the Senate of Tel Aviv University in January 1997. In the time that has elapsed between then and the completion of the manuscript of this book in early 2002, I expanded the research and supplemented the dissertation. Various sections of the manuscript have also been published in other forums in Israel and abroad. The Hebrew version of this book was published in March 2004, resulting in changes and bibliographical updates to the English manuscript in 2003–4.

While writing my dissertation, I was fortunate to have the advice of my teacher, Prof. Nadav Na’aman. His support was a source of inspiration throughout the process. His door was always open, and the opportunity to clarify research topics helped me greatly to elucidate various issues and focus the discussion. His warm attitude and extensive help continued even after I completed the doctoral dissertation, and for all of this I wish to thank him from the depths of my heart.

I received much advice and help from teachers, colleagues, and friends, among whom were Prof. Ya’irah Amit, Prof. Itzhak Beit-Arieh, Prof. Israel Finkelstein, Prof. Yair Hoffman, Prof. Gary Knoppers, Prof. Manfred Oeming, Prof. Zippora Talshir, Prof. David Vanderhooft, and Prof. Ran Zadok.

I also wish to thank the university authorities and the Buchman Foundation for the stipend that I received during my doctoral studies (1993–95). I also received scholarships from the Wolff Foundation (1991, 1992), from the Center for Research of the Land of Israel and Its Settlement at Yad Ben Zvi (1995), and from the Yaniv Foundation of the Chaim Rosenberg School of Jewish Studies (2000, 2002, 2004). I am grateful to all of them.

I received assistance in the last stages of the research, in organizing the bibliography, and in editing the material, from students and research assistants who worked with me during 1998–2000, thanks to scholarships that they were awarded due to the initiative and generosity of Isaac Gattegno and with the assistance of Doron Ofer and Michael Gee.

The maps were drawn by Ms. Yehudit Dekel of the Sonia and Marco Nadler Institute of Archaeology in Tel Aviv University.

My gratitude extends also to my mother, Yehudit Lipschits, as well as to Na’ava and Joseph Moreno, for pitching in to clear pockets of space and time for research and writing.

Above all, special thanks go to my wife, Yael. There is no one like you.

Finally, my four beloved children: Or, Tal, Na’amah, and Iddo—your cheerful and heartwarming presence made it possible to take the breaks needed to stretch my limbs and recharge my batteries.
