

Contents

Acknowledgments — vii

Abbreviations — xv

- 1 Introduction — 1
- 1.1 Setting the Stage — 1
  - 1.2 Why This Book? — 10
  - 1.3 Fascination with the Assyrian Kings — 17
  - 1.4 Tradition, Cultural Discourse, and Ideology: How They Intertwine — 21
  - 1.5 The Mobility of the Scholars and their Role at the Royal Courts — 30
  - 1.6 The Scholars' Literary Production at the Assyrian Court — 36
  - 1.7 Approaches and Method — 38
- 2 The Dynamics of Cultural Regions and Traditions in Mesopotamia and the Rise of Assyrian Cultural Discourse — 42
- 2.1 Preliminary Remarks: Studying Aššur's Early Beginnings — 42
  - 2.2 North-South Interaction and the Syro-Anatolian Impact on Assyrian Culture — 47
  - 2.3 Early Beginnings in the South and the Spread of the Cuneiform Tradition — 52
  - 2.4 The Spread of Mesopotamian Tradition to the North and its Interaction with the Hurrian Cultural Horizon — 61
  - 2.5 Excursus: The Cultural Impact of Treaties — 74
  - 2.6 The Dynasty of Akkad and the Creation of Charismatic Kingship — 79
  - 2.7 The Transformation of Tradition During the Ur III Period — 89
- 3 The Origins of Assyrian Cultural Tradition — 93
- 3.1 Where to Begin? — 93
  - 3.2 The Early History of the City of Aššur — 96
  - 3.3 Socio-Political Organization: North versus South — 103
  - 3.4 Third Millennium Ideological Discourse in Aššur — 105
  - 3.5 Šamši-Adad I and Daduša — 116
  - 3.5.1 Joining Forces to Conquer the Eastern Tigridian Region: The Impact of Politics on the Historiographic Discourse of Daduša and Šamši-Adad — 116

- 3.5.2 Daduša and his Scholars' Library as Predecessor to the Exorcist's Library in Aššur — 130
- 3.5.3 Šamši-Adad I's Kingdom of Upper Mesopotamia: Political Pragmatism and Cultural Discourse — 133
  - 3.5.3.1 The Eponym System and the Mari Chronicles — 133
  - 3.5.3.2 The Assyrian King List — 135
  - 3.5.3.3 Šamši-Adad I's Rebuilding of the Aššur Temple and Aššur's Enlilship — 141
  - 3.5.3.4 The Kings of Akkad as Models for Ambitious Rulers — 142
- 4 Empire as Cosmos, Cosmos as Empire — 145
  - 4.1 What is 'Universal Control'? — 145
  - 4.2 Controlling the Land between the Rivers: The Sargon Legend and the First Macro-Regional State under Šamši-Adad I — 152
  - 4.3 Building an Empire: The Role of Hanigalbat in the Middle Assyrian Period — 157
  - 4.4 The Neo-Assyrian Empire: The King and His Cabinet — 167
  - 4.5 The Literarization of the Empire — 174
  - 4.6 The Assyrian Capital as the Epitome of the Empire — 181
  - 4.7 Excursus: The Babylonian Map of the World — 191
- 5 Narratives of Power and the Assyrian Notion of Kingship — 198
  - 5.1 The Title 'King' and its Implications — 198
  - 5.2 Political and Religious Functions Intertwined: The Title šangû — 202
  - 5.3 Anchoring the Institution of Kingship in the Mythical Past — 205
  - 5.4 The Assyrian Notion of the King's Shepherdship (rē'ûtu) and Ashurbanipal's Coronation Hymn — 210
  - 5.5 Conclusion: The Political and Religious Dimensions of Assyrian Kingship — 217
- 6 Administrator, Hunter, Warrior: The Mythical Foundations of the King's Role as Ninurta — 219
  - 6.1 The Typification of Royal Roles: Homogeneity in Action between the Gods and the King — 219
  - 6.2 The "Divinity" of the King — 225
  - 6.3 The Interdependency of Myth and Royal Ideology — 228
  - 6.3.1 Ninurta as Enlil's Administrator: A Model for Assyrian Kingship — 228

- 6.3.2 Ninurta as Warrior: The Pervasive Rhetoric of the Combat Myth in Image and Text — 232
- 6.4 The King as Hunter: The Middle Assyrian Contribution to Ideological Discourse — 244
- 6.5 The Interface between Myth and Royal Inscriptions — 258
- 6.6 War, Abundance, and the Astralization of the Warrior God — 262
- 7 The King's Share in Divine Knowledge — 271
- 7.1 Experience, Expertise and Knowledge: The King's Place in the Cosmic Scheme — 271
- 7.2 The Trope of Abundance and Technical Expertise — 278
- 7.3 The chaîne opératoire of Royal Performance and the Assyrian Enthusiasm for Detail — 286
- 8 Between the Fictive and the Imaginary — 290
- 8.1 The Tropological Discourse of Royal Inscriptions — 290
- 8.2 The Dual-Focus Pattern of the Assyrian Epic — 296
- 8.3 The Fictive and the Imaginary: Myth versus Legend and Royal Inscriptions — 300
- 8.4 The Dynamics of Literary Textual Production and Assyrian Royal Discourse — 305
- 8.5 Making an Argument: The Intertextuality of Sennacherib's Account of the Battle of Halule — 306
- 9 The Individual Ruler as a Model for Kingship: Rethinking Ancient Historiography — 322
- 9.1 Introduction — 322
- 9.2 The Legitimizing Command of Aššur: Royal Reports and Divine Letters — 323
- 9.3 The Goddess Ištar and the King — 334
- 9.4 Esarhaddon's Reliance on Ištar's Voice and his Reformulation of the Assyrian Rules of Succession — 341
- 9.4.1 Esarhaddon's Rise to Power — 341
- 9.4.2 Esarhaddon's Oracle Collections — 345
- 9.4.3 Rewriting History through the Voices of Ištar and Aššur — 348
- 9.5 Ashurbanipal and the Omen Tradition — 360
- 9.5.1 Ashurbanipal's Personal Take on the Extispicy Omen Series iškar bārûti — 360
- 9.5.2 The Liver Models in the Broader Context of the Historical Omens — 366

9.5.3	Military Victory and the Right to Kingship: The Liver Model of Daduša — 369
9.5.4	Ashurbanipal's Appropriation of the Omen Compendia — 373
10	The Reinvention of Tradition: The Assyrian State Rituals — 379
10.1	Cultic and Ritual Contributions to Assyrian Ideological Discourse — 379
10.2	Three Middle Assyrian Rituals Originating in a Changing Political Matrix — 382
10.3	The Assyrian State Rituals of the Sargonid Period — 390
10.3.1	Introduction — 390
10.3.2	The Tākultu -ritual — 392
10.3.2.1	Envisioning a Unified Territory: The Development of the Tākultu -Ritual — 392
10.3.2.2	The Legal Implications of the Tākultu -Ritual — 399
10.3.2.3	The Dynamics of Relational Space — 402
10.3.2.4	The Theological Vision of the Tākultu -Ritual — 404
10.4	The Ritual Cycle of the Months of Šabaṭu, Addaru and Nisannu — 407
10.5	The Akītu -festival in Aššur — 416
10.6	The Neo-Assyrian Ištar Rituals — 427
10.7	The Intermediality of Myth, Ritual, and Cultic Commentaries — 432
10.8	The Assyrian Coronation Ritual — 435
10.9	Sacralizing the Regalia of Kingship — 441
11	The Voice of the Scholar — 448
11.1	Tradition and Scholarly Agency — 448
11.2	The Scholars at the Assyrian Court — 450
11.3	The King as Sage and the Mobilization of Asymmetrical Relationships — 456
11.4	Texts as the Voices of the Scholars — 461
	Appendix — 468
	No. 1 LKA 62 — 468
	No. 2 Rm 2, 455 (CT 35 pls. 37–38) — 476
	Bibliography — 477

Indices — 531

Subjects — 531

Ancient Texts — 535

Personal Names — 536

Divine Names — 539

Geographical Names — 541

Scholars — 543

Words and Phrases (by language) — 545

Index Locorum (Texts) — 548

