Contents

Introduction  Wilmot James and Daria Caliguire

Section 1  The Context

1  Citizens of a single rainbow nation – Nelson Mandela
2  Voices from the communities – Daria Caliguire
3  The struggle for the Cape Flats – Irvin Kinnes

Section 2  Making Sense of the Coloured Vote

4  The power of propaganda – Brian Williams
5  From independence to identification – Jeremy Seekings
6  The devil who keeps promises – Wilmot James
7  Minorities together and apart – Yunus Carrim

Section 3  Identity Questions in the Coloured Communities

8  Unveiling the heart of fear – Ebrahim Rasool
9  Too long in the twilight – Peter Marais
10  Breaking down the borders – Julian Sonn

Section 4  Affirmative Action and Equity

11  The RDP and affirmative action – Howard Gabriels
12  Motives, methods and milieux – Philip Black and Valerie Flanagan
13  Treading the thorny path to equity – Mamphela Ramphele

Section 5  Non-Racialism

14  A politically incorrect view of non-racialism and majority rule
   – Hermann Giliomee
15  Cultural diversity and national unity – Barbara Masekela
16  The Great Gariep: Metaphors of national unity in the new South Africa
   – Neville Alexander

Section 6  Comparative Perspectives

17  Diversity management in Canada – Heribert Adam and Kogila Moodley
18  Outlawing discrimination in Britain – Kamlesh Bahl
19  Diversity and assimilation in Brazil – Fernando Rosa Ribeiro
20  Power sharing in Malaysia – Mavis Putchucheary

Conclusion  Wilmot James and Daria Caliguire
Postscript  Kerry Cullinan

Index

About the Institute for Democracy in South Africa
Now That We Are Free