Illustrations

Figures

1.1. Demonstration in Milan against racism in 2018. © Kristín Loftsdóttir. 21
1.2. The Mexican side of the border town Naco in Sonora in 2018. © Árni Víkingur Sveinsson. 25
3.1. Looking out Ali’s window to the city of Brussels. © Kristín Loftsdóttir. 44
4.1. Different comic strip murals are found widely around Brussels, celebrating the city’s comic book artists. Photo taken in spring 2019 at Rue des Capucins, where the characters Blondin and Cirage are depicted. © Kristín Loftsdóttir. 53
6.2. The author celebrating with young WoDaaBe girls in the pastoral area in Niger in 1998. © Kristín Loftsdóttir. 90
7.1. Gerewol dance. While the photo was taken by the author in Niger during 1997, it reflects a popular representation of WoDaaBe in the European imagination. © Kristín Loftsdóttir. 97
7.2. Selling jewelry at a music festival in Brussels in 2014. © Kristín Loftsdóttir. 101
8.1. The leopard man (Aniota) at the AfricaMuseum at Tervuren (photo taken in 2019), with iron claws and spotted-skin costume. The statue iconized the savagery of Congo for Europeans, and inspired Hergé in his making of Tintin in Congo. © Kristín Loftsdóttir. 109
8.2. Protest of Belgium’s colonial heritage included strategic vandalism of King Leopold II’s statues. © Jean-Marc Pierard / Alamy Stock Photo.

9.2. Place de la Bourse in March 2016. After the attacks this was a gathering place to commemorate and pay tribute to those killed and injured. © Kristín Loftsdóttir.

Map