Contents

Acknowledgements — IX

Note on Transliteration and Usage — XIII

List of Abbreviations — XV

1 Introduction — 1
  1.1 Making Place — 1
  1.2 The Santal in their Social and Regional Context — 8
  1.3 The Santal in Existing Literature — 45
  1.4 Fieldwork Situation and Methodology — 50

2 Theoretical Approach — 66
  2.1 Place — 66
  2.2 Ritual — 79

3 The Connections between Land and Social Structure — 97
  3.1 Cornerstones of Santal Social Classification — 98
  3.2 Performing Relatedness through Ritual — 125
  3.3 Conclusion: Spatially Enacting and Transforming the Social — 175

4 Perceptions of the Environment — 180
  4.1 The Different Ritual Hunts — 181
  4.2 Rice Cultivation, the Ancestors and the Importance of Rain — 227
  4.3 Buru bonga – The Ritual of the Local Mountain God — 236
  4.4 Conclusion: Santal Perceptions of the Environment and the Distinction between Forest and Fields — 252

5 Fields of Contestation: Region, Politics and Identity — 259
  5.1 Flower Festivals, Politics and the Recent Emergence of Regional Sacred Groves (disom jahe) — 261
  5.2 The Struggle for the “True Tradition”: The All India Sarna Dhorom Movement — 288
  5.3 The Historical Context of the Increase in Cultural Politics — 310
5.4 Conclusion: Santal Claims to the Region, to a “Political Place” and to “Nature” — 314

6. Conclusion — 317
6.1 The Holism of Place — 317
6.2 Clarifying the Relationship between Place and Ritual — 324

Appendix

References — 331

Internet Sources without Named Author — 348

Index — 349

Glossary — 362

List of Photos — 370

List of Maps — 373