

Contents

Preface — XIII

Fredrik Engelstad, Cathrine Holst, Gunnar C. Aakvaag

1 Introduction: Democracy, Institutional Compatibility and Change — 1

- 1.1 What Can a Democratic Society Be Like? — 2
- 1.2 Alternative Views — 3
- 1.3 Broadening Focus on Democracy — 5
- 1.4 Institutions in Modern Societies — 8
- 1.5 Institutions in Change — 11
- 1.6 Aspects of the Nordic Model — 13
- 1.7 A Brief Note on Methods — 14
- 1.8 Challenges to Democracy in the Nordic Model — 14
- References — 18

Fredrik Engelstad

2 Social Institutions and the Quality of Democracy — 22

- 2.1 The Saliency of Normative Theory — 24
- 2.2 From Political Philosophy to Sociological Analysis — 27
- 2.3 An Old Story: Democratizing the Economy — 29
- 2.4 Normative Preconditions of the Modern Economy — 30
- 2.5 Democratic Norms in the Economy — 32
- 2.6 Welfare State Institutions in Democracy — 33
- 2.7 Democracy in the Media Institution — 37
- 2.8 Generalizing Institutional Norms and Conflicts — 41
- 2.9 A Brief Conclusion — 43
- References — 44

Gunnar C. Aakvaag

3 A Democratic Way of Life: Institutionalizing Individual Freedom in Norway — 48

- 3.1 Democracy and Freedom — 49
- 3.2 The Norwegian Democratization of Freedom — 51
- 3.3 An Institutional Approach — 52
- 3.4 Empirical, Theoretical, Comparative and Macro-Sociological Challenges — 53
- 3.5 Varieties of Freedom — 54
- 3.6 The Robinson Crusoe Model: Zero-Sum Social Freedom — 55
- 3.7 The Lilliput Model: Positive-Sum Social Freedom — 57

- 3.8 The Case of Norway — 58
- 3.9 Horizontal Differentiation: Institutional Diversity and Density — 59
- 3.10 Vertical Integration: Collective-Political Coordination — 60
- 3.11 Coordinated Differentiation: Some Empirical Illustrations — 61
- 3.12 Liberal Containment — 67
- 3.13 Institutional Complementarities, Collective Action and Political Conflicts — 68
- 3.14 Concluding Remarks — 70
- References — 72

Espen D. H. Olsen

- 4 Welfare State Discourse and Citizenship Politics: From ‘Silent’ Policy to Steering Logic — 76
- 4.1 Background: The Debate on Citizenship Post-1989 — 78
- 4.2 Studying Citizenship Politics and Welfare State Discourse — 80
- 4.3 Citizenship in Norway: From Silent Policy to Steering Logic — 83
- 4.4 Concluding Remarks: Institutional Change and Democratic Implications — 91
- References — 92

Stine Hesstvedt

- 5 Redistributing Knowledge? How Institutions Affect Citizens’ Political Knowledge Levels: The Scandinavian Case Compared — 94
- 5.1 Citizens and Political Knowledge — 95
- 5.2 From ‘The Political System Matters’ to the Importance of Equality — 97
- 5.3 The Scandinavian Case Compared — 99
- 5.3.1 Data and Operationalization — 100
- 5.3.2 Political Knowledge Gaps: A First Glance — 102
- 5.3.3 Multilevel Analysis — 105
- 5.4 Knowledge Gaps and Inequality: Exploring the Relevance of Scandinavian Institutions and Policies — 110
- 5.5 Concluding Remarks: Citizenship in a Time of Rising Inequality — 112
- References — 112
- Appendix — 116

Lars Mjøset

- 6 Old and New Social Movements in the Nordic Countries: History and Future in an International Perspective — 118
- 6.1 Introduction — 118
- 6.2 Hegemonic Shifts in the Modern World Economy — 119
- 6.3 Trajectories of Democratization and De-democratization — 122

6.4	Social Movements, Elites and Democracy in Norden's Development —	123
6.5	Defining and Comparing Old and New Movements in Norden —	128
6.6	The Women's Movement —	129
6.7	Uneven Development after 1979 – Generalization of the Western Fossil Growth Model Creates the Risk of Global Warming —	131
6.8	Different Effects of Financial Instability – Internal Western Tensions between the US and the EU —	133
6.9	Different Effects of the US Role as World Police – Conflict Zones and Refugee Flows in the EU-Connected Regional Migration System —	134
6.10	The Anti-Globalization Movement —	137
6.11	The Environmental Movement – An Anti-Waste Movement —	139
6.12	Resistance against Immigration as a Social Movement —	140
6.13	Old and New Movements in the International System —	144
6.14	Conclusion – The Nordic Models in the 21st Century —	147
	References —	148

Eva Krick, Cathrine Holst

7	Committee Governance in Consensus Cultures: An Exploration of Best Practice Cases in Germany and Norway —	151
7.1	Two Committees —	151
7.2	Consensus-Oriented Political and Epistemological Systems —	154
7.3	The Methodological Approach and Analytical Framework —	155
7.4	Case Analyses —	159
7.4.1	The Final Storage Committee —	159
7.4.2	The 22 July Commission —	164
7.5	A Condensed Normative Assessment - Overall Scores, Limitations and Tensions —	169
7.6	Conclusion —	171
	References —	172

Sveinung Legard

8	Translation and Institutional Change: What Happened when Participatory Budgeting Came to the Nordic Countries? —	175
8.1	Translation, Institutions and Change —	175
8.2	From Porto Alegre to Fredrikstad —	179
8.3	A Toolkit Version of PB —	182
8.4	Modifying a Pre-Existing Translation —	183
8.5	Supporting Representative Democracy —	185
8.6	Layering as the Best Available Option —	187
8.7	A Common Pattern – With One Exception —	188
	References —	190

Mari Teigen

- 9 Can Descriptive Representation be Justified outside Politics? — 193
- 9.1 Politics and the Economy – An Institutional Perspective — 195
- 9.2 Gender Balance and the Concept of Representation — 197
- 9.3 Arguments for Descriptive Representation of Gender in Political Organizations — 198
- 9.4 Arguments for Descriptive Representation of Gender in Corporate Boards — 200
- 9.4.1 Main Arguments in Favour of Gender-Balanced Corporate Boards — 201
- 9.5 Institutional Variation in Arguments for Descriptive Representation of Gender — 205
- 9.6 Conclusion — 209
- References — 210

Åsmund Arup Seip

- 10 The Battle over a Fair Share: The Creation of Labour Market Institutions in Norway — 213
- 10.1 The Elements of a New Institutional System — 213
- 10.1.1 Collective Agreements as a Road towards Industrial Peace — 215
- 10.2 The Role of the State in Institution Building — 217
- 10.2.1 Three Problems and the Search for a Political Solution — 219
- 10.2.2 The Law and the Institutions — 221
- 10.2.3 Central Power and Fringe Battles — 222
- 10.3 Why New Labour Market Institutions? — 224
- 10.3.1 Preconditions for the Institutional Change — 225
- 10.3.2 Social Struggle and the Role of the State — 225
- 10.4 Were There Alternatives? — 227
- 10.5 Industrial Action and Industrial Peace — 229
- References — 229

Kristin Alsos, Sissel C. Trygstad

- 11 Workplace Democracy: Representation and Participation Gaps in the Norwegian Labour Market Model — 232
- 11.1 Stability or Change? — 232
- 11.1.1 Research Questions and Outline of the Chapter — 233
- 11.2 Background – A Robust Case? — 234
- 11.3 Participation as an Institutional Arrangement — 235
- 11.3.1 The One Leg: Company-Level Arrangements and Participation — 235
- 11.3.2 The Moral Justification for Participation — 236
- 11.3.3 Relations between Perspectives – Democracy and Productivity — 237
- 11.4 Data and Method — 239

- 11.5 Findings: The Representation Gap — 240
- 11.6 Findings: The Participation Gap — 244
- 11.7 Discussion — 247
- 11.7.1 How to Explain the Gaps? — 247
- 11.7.2 How Solid Is the One Leg? — 249
- 11.8 Concluding Remarks — 251
- References — 252
- Appendix — 254

Jon Rogstad, Kaja Reegård

- 12 Bowling Alone and Working Together? Social Capital at Work — 255
- 12.1 Generalized Trust and the Workplace — 256
- 12.2 Retail Work – An Extreme Case — 259
- 12.3 Data and Methods — 260
- 12.4 Generating Trust in Retail Work — 262
- 12.4.1 Networks in Retail Work — 262
- 12.4.2 Bridging and Bonding: The Significance of Us and Them — 264
- 12.4.3 Linkages: Trust and Autonomy — 266
- 12.5 Discussion — 268
- 12.6 Conclusions — 269
- References — 270

Håkon Solbu Trætteberg

- 13 Stability and Change in Scandinavian Welfare: The Nonprofit Sector as a Buffer against For-Profit Expansion — 273
- 13.1 Institutional Change – Critical Juncture and Incremental Steps — 274
- 13.2 Central Features of the Nordic Welfare System — 275
- 13.3 Welfare Mix and Democracy — 276
- 13.4 Service Areas — 277
- 13.5 The Nature of the Change — 278
- 13.6 Schools — 278
- 13.7 Elderly Care — 280
- 13.8 What Is Happening? — 282
- 13.9 Why the Change in Sweden? — 283
- 13.9.1 Critical Juncture? — 283
- 13.10 Incremental Changes? — 285
- 13.11 Sweden, Democracy and the Future of the Nordic Welfare System — 288
- References — 291

Anniken Hagelund

14 No Factory for Dreams: Street-Level Bureaucrats between Activation Targets and User Orientation — 296

- 14.1 Introduction — 296
- 14.2 Democracy, Discretion and Street-Level Bureaucracy — 297
- 14.3 Discretion in Context — 301
- 14.4 The Work Line and User Orientation in Practice — 304
- 14.5 Democracy at the Street-Level? — 307
- References — 310

Øyvind Skorge

15 The Demand for Work-Family Policies in Advanced Capitalist Democracies — 312

- 15.1 A Brief Conceptualization of Work-Family Policies — 313
- 15.2 Household Bargaining and the Demand for Work-Family Policies — 315
- 15.3 Empirical Analysis: Demand for Work-Family Policies — 319
 - 15.3.1 Using Cross-National Survey Data to Measure Demand — 319
 - 15.3.2 Measuring Employment and Education in the Survey Data — 321
 - 15.3.3 Evidence of Gender Differences in Demand for Work-Family Policies — 323
- 15.4 Institutional Variation in Demand — 327
 - 15.4.1 Work-Family Policies, Skill Specificity and Wage Inequality — 327
 - 15.4.2 Empirical Patterns of National Institutions and Demand for WFPs — 329
- 15.5 Conclusions and Political Implications — 335
- References — 337
- Appendix — 341

Trygve Gulbrandsen

16 Business Elite Confidence in Political Institutions: The Case of Norway — 343

- 16.1 Trust and Institutional Trust — 345
- 16.2 The Significance of Participation in the Corporatist System for Business Leaders' Institutional Trust — 346
 - 16.2.1 The Importance of Contact — 346
 - 16.2.2 The Importance of Knowledge — 347
 - 16.2.3 The Importance of Occupational Experience — 347
- 16.3 Winners and Losers — 348
- 16.4 Elitist Attitudes — 348
- 16.5 Data and Method — 349

- 16.6 Results — 351
- 16.7 Individual Business Leaders' Trust – Empirical Findings — 353
- 16.8 Discussion — 355
- 16.8.1 Level of Trust — 355
- 16.8.2 Increase in Trust — 356
- 16.8.3 The Significance of Elitist Attitudes — 357
- 16.8.4 Personal versus Institutional Trust — 359
- 16.8.5 A Unified Business Elite? — 359
- 16.9 Conclusion — 360
- References — 360

Fredrik Engelstad

- 17 Elite Compromise as a Mode of Institutional Change: The United States and Norway Compared — 363
- 17.1 Elites and Compromises — 365
- 17.2 Institutionalization and Institutional Change — 367
- 17.3 United States and Norway: Establishment of Primary Elite Compromises — 368
- 17.3.1 United States — 369
- 17.3.2 Norway — 370
- 17.4 Processes of Regime Stability and Change — 370
- 17.4.1 Regime Stability and Change in the United States — 371
- 17.4.2 Regime Stability and Change in Norway — 372
- 17.5 Secondary Elite Compromises — 374
- 17.5.1 The United States — 374
- 17.5.2 Norway — 377
- 17.6 Varieties of Elite Compromises — 380
- 17.7 Modes of Institutional Change — 381
- 17.8 Resilience of Democracy — 384
- References — 385

Fredrik Engelstad

- 18 Afterword: Institutional Differentiation and Change — 389
- 18.1 Differentiation and Dedifferentiation — 392
- 18.1.1 General Effects of Differentiation — 392
- 18.1.2 Emergence of New Institutional Elements — 392
- 18.1.3 Dedifferentiation — 394
- 18.2 Dynamic Interplay — 395
- 18.2.1 Political Behaviour — 395
- 18.2.2 Deliberation and Changes in the Media Structure — 396
- 18.2.3 Public Agencies — 397

18.3	Resistance to Change —	397
18.4	Institutional Differentiation and Democracy —	398
	References —	399

	About the Authors —	401
--	----------------------------	------------