Content

Editorial — IX

1 Objectivity and Realism

Tyler Burge
Perception: Ground of Empirical Objectivity — 3

Howard Robinson
Objectivity: How is it Possible? — 23

Olivier Massin
Realism’s Kick — 39

Michael Schmitz
The Good, The Bad, and The Naïve — 57

2 Content and Intentionality

Michael Tye
How to Think About the Representational Content of Visual Experience — 77

Marcello Oreste Fiocco
Structure, Intentionality and the Given — 95

Guillaume Fréchette
Brentano on Perception and Illusion — 119

Sofia Miguens
The Problem with J. Searle’s Idea That ‘all Seeing is Seeing-as’ (or What Wittgenstein did not Mean With the Duck-Rabbit) — 135
3 Perception, Cognition and Images

Uriah Kriegel
The Perception/Cognition Divide: One More Time, With Feeling — 149

Pierre Jacob
Why Verbal Understanding is Unlikely to be an Extended Form of Perception — 171

Mark Eli Kalderon
Sound and Image — 189

4 The Cognitive Penetrability of Perception

Berit “Brit” Brogaard
Bias-Driven Attention, Cognitive Penetration and Epistemic Downgrading — 199

Athanassios Raftopoulos
Pre-Cueing, Early Vision, and Cognitive Penetrability — 217

Ophelia Deroy
Predictions do not Entail Cognitive Penetration: “Racial” Biases in Predictive Models of Perception — 235

5 Epistemology of Perception

Charles Travis
Boundless — 251

Johannes Roessler
The Manifest and the Philosophical Image of Perceptual Knowledge — 275

Philipp Berghofer & Harald A. Wiltsche
The Co-Presentational Character of Perception — 303

Frédérique de Vignemont
Knowledge Without Observation: Body Image or Body Schema? — 323
6 Perception and the Sciences

Romana K. Schuler
Scheinbewegungen. Wahrnehmung zwischen Wissensgeschichte und Gegenwartskunst — 337

Ulrich Arnswald
Zur Analogie von Wittgensteins Konzept des Aspektwechsels und der wissenschaftlichen Metapher als Vehikel der Innovation — 357

7 Wittgenstein

David G. Stern
The Structure of Tractatus and the Tractatus Numbering System — 377

Hans Sluga
Wittgensteins Welt — 399

Index of Names — 417