

Contents

Preface — V

Contributors — IX

Peter C. Bisschop and Elizabeth A. Cecil

Primary Sources and Asian Pasts: Beyond the Boundaries of the “Gupta Period” — 1

Part I: Narrative Form and Literary Legacies

James L. Fitzgerald

Why So Many ‘Other’ Voices in the ‘Brahmin’ Mahābhārata? — 21

Peter C. Bisschop

After the Mahābhārata: On the Portrayal of Vyāsa in the Skandapurāṇa — 44

Laxshmi Rose Greaves

The “Best Abode of Virtue”: Sattra Represented on a Gupta-Period Frieze from Gaṛhwā, Uttar Pradesh — 64

Hans T. Bakker

The Skandapurāṇa and Bāṇa’s Harṣacarita — 106

Part II: Political Landscapes and Regional Identity

Max Deeg

Describing the Own Other: Chinese Buddhist Travelogues Between Literary Tropes and Educational Narratives — 129

Emmanuel Francis

Imperial Languages and Public Writings in Tamil South India: A Bird’s-Eye View in the Very Longue Durée — 152

Miriam T. Stark

Landscapes, Linkages, and Luminescence: First-Millennium CE
Environmental and Social Change in Mainland Southeast Asia — 184

Janice Stargardt

Sri Ksetra, 3rd Century BCE to 6th Century CE: Indianization, Synergies, Creation — 220

Part III: Religion, Ritual, and Empowerment

Csaba Dezső

The Meaning of the Word ārya in Two Gupta-Period Inscriptions — 269

Bryan J. Cuevas

Four Syllables for Slaying and Repelling: A Tibetan Vajrabhairava
Practice from Recently Recovered Manuscripts of the “Lost” Book of Rwa
(Rwa pod) — 278

Amy Paris Langenberg

Love, Unknowing, and Female Filth: The Buddhist Discourse of Birth as a Vector of Social Change for Monastic Women in Premodern South
Asia — 308

Elizabeth A. Cecil

A Natural Wonder: From Liṅga Mountain to Prosperous Lord at Vat
Phu — 341

Index — 385