

Contents

Markus Gottschling and Olaf Kramer

Recontextualized Knowledge

Introduction: A Rhetorical View on Science Communication — 1

Part I: Science Communication and the Public Sphere

Sara D. Hodges, Sara Lieber and Kathryn R. Denning

Where Perspective Taking Can and Cannot Take Us — 17

Markus Gottschling

Creating a Rhetorical Situation

Kevin Esvelt, Gene Drive and the Call for Open and Responsive Science — 45

Sophia Hatzisavvidou

Communicating Sustainability

Shifting Context, Altering Content? — 69

Part II: Narratives and Stories

Martijn Wackers

Memorable Stories in Science and Popular Science

How Speakers Use Anecdotes in Research Presentations and TED Talks — 93

Thomas Susanka

Questions and Dialogue in Science Communication

The Rhetoricity of Complex Stories in Radiolab — 119

Kristin Raabe

Scientists on the Hero's Journey

Storytelling in Different Communicative Situations — 131

Part III: Education and Knowledge Transfer

Nina Janich

Science Revisited

The Representation of Scientific Knowledge and Ignorance in the German Kinder-Uni Books — 151

Joachim Kimmerle

How Laypeople Process Health News Articles

Effects on Perception and Participation on the Internet — 169

Christoph Kulgemeyer

Towards a “Culture of Explaining” in Science Teaching

How Pre-Service Physics Teachers’ Beliefs Impact the Quality of Their Instructional Explanations — 183

Julia Siebert and Anett Richter

An Opportunity to Induce Bottom-Up Change in Society

Bringing the Transformative Potential of Citizen Science Into the Classroom — 199

Index — 227

List of Contributors — 229