Acknowledgments

First of all, I would like to thank Albert Newen, who supported me in numerous ways. Without him I would not have been able to live the academic life I dreamed of from a young age. He improved my work through various discussions and put it on the right track from the beginning. Many thanks for having faith in me. I would also like to thank Colin Klein. Besides being a magnificent dialog partner regarding almost every subject, he substantially inspired my research on pain and allowed me to profit from his immense knowledge.

I would also like to thank Beate Krickel, Pascale Willemsen, and Judith Martens for being role models and caregivers from day one. I have greatly benefited from the insightful comments and continuous support of my entire research group and of other local philosophers, in particular: Lena Kästner, Julia Wolf, Francesco Marchi, Matej Kohár, Alfredo Vernazzani, Tobias Schlicht, Luke Roelofs, Elmarie Venter, and Tobias Starzak. Additionally, I would like to thank all those philosophers, psychologists, and neuroscientists I have met during research stays and conferences all over the world. The quality of my work was significantly improved in the light of their feedback. Among them were Valerie Hardcastle, Kevin Reuter, Sascha B. Fink, Sigrid Elsenbruch, Shaun Gallagher, Frédérique de Vignemont, Marta Caravá, Kevin Ryan, Michael Sienhold, Stephan Mann, Peter Clutton, and Ross Pain.

I would also like to thank the Barbara-Wengeler-Stiftung, the Research School of the Ruhr-University Bochum, and the Wilhelm & Günter Esser Stiftung for their generous financial support.

Last, but not least, I would like to thank all those who supported me behind the scenes in an incredibly patient and caring manner. None of this would have been possible without my family and friends, i.e. all those people who accompanied me on the way in good times and in bad. Particularly, I want to thank David who has perhaps suffered the most and still never gave up his belief in me.
