

Contents

Preface — V

List of abbreviations — IX

Part 1: The nature of ditransitive arguments: the contribution of diachrony

Chiara Fedriani and Maria Napoli

1 How do ditransitives change? — 3

Michele Prandi

2 Roles and grammatical relations in synchrony and diachrony:
the case of the indirect object — 19

Part 2: Ditransitive verbs and construction alternation

Chiara Fedriani

3 The spread of the ad construction in Merovingian Latin: identifying semantic paths in the domain of ditransitives — 61

Maria Napoli

4 Old Italian ditransitive constructions: between alternation and change — 97

Timothy Coleman

5 The emergence of the dative alternation in Dutch: towards the establishment of a horizontal link — 137

Cristiano Broccias and Enrico Torre

6 Attraction and differentiation in the history of the English dative and benefactive alternations — 169

Evi Van Damme, Ludovic De Cuypere and Klaas Willems

7 The ditransitive alternation in the history of German:
the case of verkaufen ('sell') — 197

Part 3: Ditransitives between stability and further developments

Eystein Dahl

8 The diachrony of ditransitives in Vedic Sanskrit — 231

Anna Giacalone Ramat

9 Passives of ditransitives: the gradual rise of a Recipient passive in Italian — 259

Chantal Melis and Sergio Ibáñez Cerda

10 ‘Hit’ semantics and physical sensations: on the development of spontaneous event constructions with Spanish dar ‘give’ — 285

Subject Index — 313