Acknowledgements

This book is a result of my doctoral investigation awarded by the University of Coimbra and funded by the Foundation for Science and Technology (SFRH/BD/85173/2012) which allowed me to be dedicated in full to this enterprise and created the conditions for several visits to the University of Nottingham during the research. I am thankful for the guidance, knowledge, and generosity of Patrick Finglass who supervised and discussed the research outputs and the manuscript and to Frederico Lourenço who encouraged me to pursue higher goals and challenges. A word of thanks is also due to Carlos de Jesus who commented the manuscript and made relevant suggestions of improvements, and to João Baptista for his constant presence throughout the years that took this volume to be completed. This book could not have been successfully concluded without the help, the encouragement, and the marvellous work of the editors and staff of De Gruyter’s Trends in Classics, especially Professors Franco Montanari and Antonios Rengakos for accepting the publication of this volume, and to Marco Michele Acquafredda, Katerina Zianna, and Anne Hiller.

Finally, I want to address my deepest gratitude and love to my family who stood by my side through the perils of this task, especially to Miguel whose love and support have guided me throughout all the aspects of this and other projects, and to our daughter to whom I dedicate this book.