Acknowledgements

This volume is the result of the research project “Concepts and Functions of European Philhellenism in the Era of the Restoration (1815–30)” at the University of Cyprus (2013–15). The final form of this book reflects the shaping, revision, development and elaboration of ideas and critical discussions following an International Conference held at the University of Cyprus in 2015, entitled “Philhellenism and European Identity”.

We are indebted to A.G. Leventis Foundation for the grant awarded for this research, without which the successful completion of this book would not have been possible. We are also grateful to the Center for Modern Greece (CeMoG) for their cooperation. We wish to additionally express our sincere gratitude to the University of Cyprus, which generously provided its facilities and assistance during all research activities related to our project.

We owe a special debt of gratitude to Dr. Despina Keramida, Special Scientist at the University of Cyprus, for the textual revision and editorial input of all the chapters that comprise the edited volume. We sincerely thank Ms. Angela Zerbe, who was responsible for proofreading and language editing of all the chapters included in the volume.
