List of Tables

Tab. 1.1 The relevant referential functions —— 12
Tab. 1.2 Mapping the article types to their referential functions —— 13
Tab. 1.3 Primary data collection —— 23
Tab. 1.4 Languages from the macro area “Africa” —— 24
Tab. 1.5 Languages from the macro area “Eurasia” —— 25
Tab. 1.6 Languages from the macro area “Papunesia” —— 27
Tab. 1.7 Languages from the macro area “Australia” —— 28
Tab. 1.8 Languages from the macro area “North America” —— 29
Tab. 1.9 Languages from the macro area “South America” —— 31

Tab. 3.1 Traditional view of specificity and nonspecificity —— 91
Tab. 3.2 Overview of the referential functions —— 98
Tab. 3.3 Mapping the article types to their referential functions —— 99

Tab. 4.1 The functional domain of demonstratives and definite articles (Himmelmann 1997: 191) —— 110
Tab. 4.2 The distinction between demonstratives and articles —— 112
Tab. 4.3 Defining criteria for the articles in the definite domain —— 115
Tab. 4.4 Third person possessive markers in (Beserman) Udmurt —— 121
Tab. 4.5 Characteristic properties of indefinite articles (Heine 1997: 68) —— 130
Tab. 4.6 The distinction between the numeral ‘one’ and articles —— 130
Tab. 4.7 Relevant contexts for adnominal NPIs —— 134

Tab. 5.1 The distribution of ri in Kaqchikel —— 145
Tab. 5.2 Paradigm of the definite article in Mokpe —— 146
Tab. 5.3 The distribution of ė/H in Mokpe —— 152
Tab. 5.4 Kaqchikel demonstratives —— 156
Tab. 5.5 Limbum demonstratives —— 166
Tab. 5.6 The distribution of fō in Limbum —— 171
Tab. 5.7 The distribution of ane in Komnzo —— 174
Tab. 5.8 The distribution of no in Akan —— 185
Tab. 5.9 Definite articles in Fering —— 190
Tab. 5.10 The distribution of the weak definite article in Fering —— 197
Tab. 5.11 The distribution of the weak definite article in German —— 197
Tab. 5.12 The distribution of definite, anaphoric, and recognitional articles —— 233

Tab. 6.1 Exponents of the Biak exclusive-specific article —— 260
Tab. 6.2 Ayoreo article exponents —— 269
Tab. 6.3 Lakota exclusive-specific and nonspecific article paradigm —— 273
Tab. 6.4 Tongan article paradigm —— 275

Tab. 7.1 Bemba noun class markers —— 291
Tab. 7.2 Ayoreo article exponents —— 294

https://doi.org/10.1515/9783110724424-203
Tab. 7.3  Halkomelem article exponents — 315
Tab. 8.1  Distribution of the 10 article types in the sample — 324
Tab. 8.2  Distribution of definite articles across macro areas — 332
Tab. 8.3  Distribution of indefinite articles across macro areas — 332
Tab. 8.4  Distribution of anaphoric articles across macro areas — 333
Tab. 8.5  Third person pronouns in Australian languages with anaphoric articles — 334
Tab. 8.6  The distribution of (referential) markers across the referential scale — 343
Tab. 8.7  Coverage of definite, specific, and nonspecific functions — 346
Tab. 8.8  A typology of articles — 348
Tab. 8.9  Dryer’s preliminary typology of articles — 351

Tab. 9.1  Maori determiners — 381
Tab. 9.2  Article systems only marking the definite domain — 394
Tab. 9.3  Article systems only marking the indefinite domain — 395
Tab. 9.4  Article systems marking the definite and the indefinite domain I — 397
Tab. 9.5  Article systems marking the definite and the indefinite domain II — 400
Tab. 9.6  Article systems with functional overlap — 402
Tab. 9.7  DEF-INDEF and INSPEC-NSPEC splits in article systems — 406

Tab. 10.1  The 10 article types with their referential functions — 410