Acknowledgements

It would not have been possible to bring this volume to life without the support of many colleagues and friends. We would like to thank first of all the contributors to the volume for their confidence, enthusiasm and (not least) their patience during this process. This volume would not exist but for the excellent papers and productive atmosphere of AMPAL 2018, so we would like to thank the rest of the organising committee, Julene Abad Del Vecchio, Serena Cammoranesi, Laura Chambers, and Matt Ingham, for their help with running the conference, and everyone who attended and participated in the conference and its many discussions. Both editors (and, indeed, the conference itself!) found ourselves at home in the department of Classics, Ancient History, Archaeology, and Egyptology at the University of Manchester over many years, so we would also like to extend our thanks to the whole department for their years of support. Parts of this volume were also completed during a stay in the wonderful environment of the Fondation Hardt in March 2019, so our thanks go to the people (and library) of the Fondation.

Our thanks also go to the Trends in Classics team at De Gruyter, and particularly to those who have supported us at each stage of this volume’s publication. We would like to thank in particular Marco Michele Acquafredda, Anne Hiller, and Katerina Zianna for their support with this process.

In putting together this volume, from the initial proposal to assembling its introduction and structure, we benefitted greatly from the encouragement and advice of colleagues in Manchester, so our final, heartfelt thanks go to Andrew Morrison, Alison Sharrock, Jenny Bryan, Ruth Morello, Matt Ingham, Julene Abad Del Vecchio, Alexandra Wilding, and Katherine Molesworth.
