

Acknowledgements

This book is the revised and translated version of my PhD dissertation at École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales (EHESS), Paris. First and foremost, I thank my supervisor Sebastian Veg for his guidance, encouragement, and open-mindedness that allowed me to elaborate freely on a project about which I am passionate. My deepest gratitude also goes to Nicolas Zufferey, Clarisse Berthezène, Joachim Kurtz, and Yves Chevrier. I was helped enormously by their insightful advice, ideas, critiques, and feedback, which helped me to transform my PhD dissertation into a monograph.

A considerable number of sources that I have used in this book were found at the Institute of Advanced Studies on Asia, University of Tokyo, and the Institute of Modern History, Academia Sinica. I would like to thank Haneda Massahi and Huang Ko-wu who arranged my research stays in Tokyo and Taipei. I thank these two institutes for their generous hospitality. Staff members of the libraries of the University of Tokyo, Academia Sinica, and Tōyō Bunko showed extraordinary professionalism, which greatly facilitated my research there.

My thanks also go to the Centre d'études sur la Chine moderne et contemporaine, Institut d'Asie Orientale and EHESS, who accorded me generous funding to effectuate my research overseas. I am particularly grateful to the Department of History of the EHESS who offered me a doctoral contract. This was instrumental in allowing me to concentrate on my research, since the increased financial burden on students in social sciences is especially problematic and heavy.
