Acknowledgements

The editors wish to thank all authors for their commitment and great work, as well as for kindly accepting our suggestions and editing. We also wish to thank all reviewers for their valuable comments and feedback and to our two proofreaders: Cristina Fernández-Hall and John Shakespear. We would also like to acknowledge the support of some institutions which have been crucial for this research. Specifically, the European Research Council, which finances the ERC StG project “Social Networks of the Past. Mapping Hispanic and Lusophone Literary Modernity” (grant agreement n° 803860), and the Global Literary Studies Research Lab (GlobaLS), led by Diana Roig-Sanz at the IN3-UOC. Special thanks should also be given to our publisher, De Gruyter, and to Maxim Karagodin, Editor in Hispanic & Latin American Studies, for his valuable help and patience along the process, as well as to Gabrielle Cornefert, our Content Editor Books.
