Contents

Acknowledgements — V

List of figures — XI

List of tables — XIII

List of abbreviations — XVII

1 Introduction — 1
1.1 Lexical semantics: Approaches and basic notions — 3
1.2 Aims, scope, and contributions — 9
1.3 Overview of the book — 11

2 Synonymy — 14
2.1 Classifications of synonymy — 15
2.2 The distributional corpus-based approach and synonymy — 24
2.2.1 Two waves of research — 25
2.2.2 Near-synonymous adjectives — 33
2.3 Synonymy and diachrony — 38

3 The concept PLEASANT SMELLING — 48
3.1 Introducing the synonym set — 49
3.1.1 Why the concept PLEASANT SMELLING — 49
3.1.2 Revising reference works — 51
3.2 Corpus description and data retrieval — 61
3.3 Data annotation — 65
3.3.1 Language-internal semantic variables: Sense — 68
3.3.2 Language-internal semantic variables: Semantic category — 71
3.3.3 Language-internal semantic variables: Animacy, Concreteness, and Countability — 85
3.3.4 Language-internal non-semantic variables — 89
3.3.5 Language-external variables — 94

4 Semasiological and onomasiological analyses of the synonym set — 97
4.1 Frequency of the adjectives — 99
4.2 The evolution of the concept PLEASANT SMELLING — 102
7.4.2 Data-driven approach — 214
7.5 Discussion — 218

8 Concluding remarks and suggestions for future research — 220

List of references and sources — 231
  References — 231
  Sources — 243

Appendix — 245

Index — 267