Acknowledgements

This book has had a long gestation. I came across the Epigramma Paulini over twenty years ago while researching my MA thesis at the University of Naples ‘Federico II’ under the supervision of Prof. Salvatore D’Elia who introduced me to the poem. I continued to work on it at the University of Manchester (UK) as part of my thesis for a PhD awarded in 2004. I owe many debts of gratitude to various people without whose contributions and assistance this book would not have been possible. I am particularly grateful to my then supervisors Prof. David Langslow for his time and scholarship and Prof. Roy K. Gibson for introducing me to the painstaking art of commentaries. My thanks go also to Prof. Catherine Conybeare and Prof. Karla Pollmann for many valuable suggestions on early drafts of this work. I would also like to thank Prof. Roberto Palla and Prof. R. P. H. Green for their penetrating comments on individual chapters of my book. Audiences at the Classics departments of UCLA, Manchester, Leeds, Edinburgh, St. Andrews, Lisbon and the Istituto Patristico “Augustinianum” in Rome pointed me in fruitful directions of which I was previously unaware. I would also thank for their support and timely help the librarians of the University of Vienna, the John Rylands Library at the University of Manchester and the whole team at the Fondation Hardt in Geneva. I am most grateful to my family, Abigail and Giulia, to whom this book is dedicated, and to my parents for their moral support over the years.
