Acknowledgments

The authors of the chapters in this volume took part in a conference on cultural heritage in China: ‘Contested Understandings, Images and Practices’, held at the Centre for East and South-East Asian Studies, Lund University, in June 2015. We are grateful to all of the participants at the conference who contributed to the lively discussions and for their insights on a plurality of topics concerning Chinese cultural heritage. The conference received generous financial support from the Swedish Research Council and the Birgit Rausing language programme in Chinese at Lund University, with the latter also providing support for some of the proofreading. Moreover, we thank our editors at IIAS and Amsterdam University Press for their support and helpful feedback. Finally, we are grateful for the comments made by two anonymous reviewers.

The editors would also like to acknowledge the individual support the authors have obtained for their research from institutions and funding bodies: Christina Maags was generously supported by the Volkswagen Foundation, Marina Svensson was supported by the Swedish Research Council and Susette Cooke was supported by the Australian Research Council for Discovery Projects scheme. Moreover, Florence Graezer Bideau and Haiming Yan were supported by the Swiss Network for International Studies (SNIS) for two years (2015-2017).

Note on transcription and translation

Chinese names are written with the family name first. In this volume we also use this practice throughout the chapters of the book. Yet, for the sake of structural uniformity, we use the Western style order in the Table of Contents, indicating the family name last.
