Table of Contents

Dustin Peone
Vico’s Theory of Humor and Laughter — 1

Jonathan Weidenbaum
Laughter as Natural Piety: John Dewey, Humor, and the Religious — 27

Jarno Hietalahti and Joonas Pennanen
Understanding Humor: Four Conceptual Approaches to the Elusive Subject — 53

Tristan Burt
Reality Is a Joke — 81

Michael K. Cundall, Jr. and Fabrizio Macagno
What Makes a Joke Bad: Enthymemes and the Pragmatics of Humor — 111

Lukas J. Myers
It’s Okay to Laugh at Fat Bastard: Ridicule, Satire, and Immoralism — 131

Amy Marvin
Oppression, Subversive Humor, and Unstable Politics — 163

Jeremy Fogel
What’s the Deal with Sophists? Critical Thought and Humor in Ancient Philosophy and Contemporary Comedy — 187

Discussion: Article for Further Debate

Janet McCracken
What’s So Funny About Golf? — 221

Chris A. Kramer
Artificial Intelligence, Phenomenology, and The Molyneux Problem — 225
Thomas Wilk
A Kernel of Truth: Outlining an Epistemology of Jokes — 227

Philosophical Satire and Criticism

Thomas J. Brommage
How to Read Wittgenstein as x: An Exercise in Selective Interpretation — 251

Humor in Philosophy Education

Christine A. James
Quantifying Laughter in International Research — 263

Symposium
Edited by Steven Gimbel

Critics
Susan Castro V. H.
Prosecuting the Case against Clewis — 283

Lauren Olin
All in Good Taste — 287

Stephen A. Setman
Is Kant Seriously Funny? — 291

Richard M. Rubin
Clewis on Kant’s Humor — 295

Author’s Response
Robert R. Clewis
Humor and the Arts: Taking Kant Seriously — 301
Book Reviews — 307

Call for Papers, Book Reviews, Guidelines — 315