Eastern Approach to Chinese Philosophy

Hans Feger (FU, Berlin), Xie Dikun (RU, Beijing), Hao Lixin (RU, Beijing), Wang Ge (CASS, Beijing)
Editorial Preface

The Yearbook for Eastern and Western Philosophy is a joint initiative of Walter de Gruyter publishers (Dr. Serena Pirrotta, Editorial Director Humanities), the Institute for Philosophy of Renmin University of China (Prof. Dr. Xie Dikun; Prof. Dr. Hao Lixin, director), Dr. Wang Ge (CASS), and the Institute for Philosophy of the Freie Universität Berlin (Prof. Dr. Hans Feger), whose objective is to make the joint German and Chinese philosophical research more internationally visible.

To this end the yearbook gathers together philosophers and scientists from the PRC, Germany and other parts of Europe within a diverse, challenging, intercultural philosophical research program. In stringently selected contributions, philosophical dissertations from joint research areas are published along with historical analyses and discoveries which are of interest to both cultural regions. Additionally, emphasis is placed on critical intercultural dialogue with the aim of bringing objectivity to public discourses. Critical reports and discussions provide an overview of the tendencies of philosophical development in both cultural hemispheres.

The Yearbook is published in two editions, a German-English edition with De Gruyter publishers and an identical Chinese edition in the Chinese Social Science Press (CSSP). The large majority of the contributions and essays in the Yearbook are first publications; they originate in the relevant German-Chinese colloquiaums, specialist conferences, symposiums and congresses taking place in both Germany and China. However, since creative debates on conceptual suggestions and innovations in philosophy generally proceed in the respective native tongue and are only directed at an international public in a second phase, important and precedent-setting research-contributions, both Chinese and German, may also be included as second publications – constituting up to one third of the book’s length.

The international Scientific Advisory Board consists of Chinese and German, respectively European, members. Its job is to regularly evaluate specialist contributions and conference findings and to make recommendations for publication when appropriate.

Advisory board

Prof. Sun Zhouxing (Shanghai, Tongji-University.), Prof. Wang Hui (Peking, Tsinghua University), Prof. Han Shuifa (Beijing-University), Prof. Deng Xiaomang (Wuhan-University), Prof. Ni Liangkang (Zhejiang University, Hangzhou), Prof. Tze-wan Kwan (Chinese University of Hongkong), Prof. Wang Wen-Sheng
(National Chengchi University, Taipei); Prof. Zhang Liwen (Renmin University of China); Prof. Chen Xianda (Renmin University of China); Prof. Liu Dachun (Renmin University of China); Prof. Zhao Dunhua (Beijing-University); Prof. Han Zhen (Foreign Studies University, Beijing). Prof. Wilhelm Schmidt-Biggemann (Freie Universität Berlin), Prof. Stefan Gosepath (Freie Universität Berlin), Prof. Günter Zöller (LMU), Prof. Claudia Bickmann † (Universität Köln), Prof. Heiner Klemme (Universität Mainz), Prof. Hilge Landweer (Freie Universität Berlin), Prof. Anne Eusterschulte (Freie Universität Berlin), Prof. Li Wenchao (Berlin-Brandenburgische Akademie), Prof. Georg Stenger (Universität Wien), Prof. Helwig Schmidt-Glintzer (Georg-August-Universität Göttingen), Prof. Heiner Roetz (Ruhr-Universität Bochum), Prof. Francois Jullien (Universität Paris VII); Prof. Bernhard Waldenfels (Ruhr-Universität Bochum)
Contents

Editorial Preface — V

Hans Feger
Preface — 1

Sun Xiangchen
Zur Philosophie der chinesischen Sprachwelt: Ursprungsdanken, Argumentationsfeld und Methoden — 5

Zhang Li-wen
Transcending and Calling – One Hundred Years of Philosophical Study in China and its Future Tendency — 53

Zhang Xuezhi
On the “Ultimate Concern” in Song-Ming Study of Principle — 77

Luo An-xian
Confucius’ Theory of Junzi and its Contemporary Significance — 109

Deng Xiaomang
Über die Umgestaltung der daoistischen Philosophie — 125

Roger T. Ames
Entschärfung des Essentialismusvorwurfs: Einige methodische Überlegungen zur Praxis der Kulturphilosophie — 171

Taklap Yeung
Mou Zongsan’s Critique of Heidegger’s Interpretation of Kant and his Solution: A Transcultural Discourse on Human Finitude and Infinitude — 195

Wang Hui
Poetische Pädagogik und ästhetische Erziehung — 217
Zhao Tingyang
Time and Historicity in Terms of Changes — 243

Miscellaneous

Georg Lohmann †
A Confucian Farewell to Human Rights? — 259

Natalie Chamat
Literature and Philosophy in Global Dialogue: The Educational Encounter — 273

Biobibliography — 287

Name Index — 291