During the past eight months, preparation of this volume has gone forward in the Mark Twain Papers at The Bancroft Library of the University of California, Berkeley. My thanks go first to Frederick Anderson, Editor of the Mark Twain Papers, and to those who have worked under his direction: the team for textual work that includes Kenneth M. Sanderson, Bernard L. Stein, Victor Fischer, Susan Sheffield, Linda Mullen, and Sharron Brown, and the research team of Michael B. Frank, Alan D. Gribben, Robert Hirst, and Lin Salamo.

Henry Nash Smith of the University of California gave me the benefit of his wise suggestions at the time that the volume was beginning to take shape. Matthew J. Bruccoli of the University of South Carolina provided valuable advice on textual matters. Norman S. Grabo of the University of California examined the manuscript as the representative of the Center for Editions of American Authors of the Modern Language Association and offered helpful suggestions. Howard Baetzhold of Butler University, Walter Blair of the University of Chicago, Louis J. Budd of Duke University, and Robert Regan of the University of Pennsylvania all gave me useful information and ideas.

the Mark Twain Papers. Much of the work on this volume was supported by that bequest.

The Center for Editions of American Authors generously provided funds in support of my editorial work during the summer of 1970. A sabbatical leave from Purdue University in 1967 was partly devoted to preliminary work upon the present volume, and my thanks go to Vice President C. H. Lawshe and Deans G. W. Bergren, Carl H. Elliott, and Richard J. Combs of Purdue for their assistance and their continued interest in my work. I am grateful for the assistance of the staff of the Rare Books Collection of The Bancroft Library at the University of California, Berkeley. I thank my wife, Irene, and our children, Janis and Alan, for their continued indulgence of editorial efforts that have often taken me away from home.
