Contents

Introduction 1

I. The Technical Bases of Gothic Architecture 5
   Romanesque Antecedents, 7
   The Ile-de-France Milieu, 26

II. Gothic Spaciousness 45
   The Genesis of the Gothic Chevet:
      Saint-Martin-des-Champs, 49
   The Choir of Saint-Denis, 61
   The Interior Design of Sens Cathedral, 64
   The Importance of Width, 73

III. The Early Gothic Grid 79
   Linear Values, 80
   The Basic Pattern of Bays, 81
   An Increasing Linearization, 86
   A Stereometric System, 90
   A Numerical Ordering, 96
   The Four-Story Grid, 103

IV. A First Gothic System, ca. 1160–1180 117
   Three Schools of Gothic, 120
   A Constructional System: The Tribune Church, 124
   Contrast between Parisian and Northern Group:
      Volumes and Space, 131
      Surfaces and Light, 145
   Plurality within the Gothic Movement, 154
V. Late 12th-Century Changes
  Methods of Detached Shafting, 158
  The Double-wall System, 166
  A Simplified Elevation: The Braine Type, 172
  Invention of the Flying Buttress, 179
  Final Innovations at Laon, 186

VI. The Flying Buttress and the Second Gothic System
  The Workings of the Flying Buttress, 196
  The Start of a Great Renewal: The Bourges-Chartres Contrast, 198
  The World of Bourges, 202
  The New Statement of Chartres, 220

VII. After Chartres and Bourges: Diffusion and Changes between 1200 and 1230
  Bourges and Chartres as Models, 248
    The Bourges Series, 248
    The Chartres Series, 254
  Le Mans, 257
  Reims, 266
  Amiens, 275
  Saint-Quentin and Beauvais, 281
  The End of a System, 295

VIII. Divergent Trends in the Early 13th Century
  Autonomous Gothic Developments, 305
  Persistence of 12th-Century Types, 312
  Bypassing of the Chartrain Stage:
    The Braine Series, 328
    Early 13th-Century Burgundy, 336
    A Peripheral Gothic Movement, 341

IX. A Third Gothic System: The Rayonnant Style
  First Signs of a New Approach, 361
  The Saint-Denis Style, 366
  A New Reims Style: Saint-Nicaise, 381
After Saint-Nicaise and Saint-Denis: The 1240s, 386
Toward a New Britteness, 396

X. Late 13th-Century Architecture
   Diffusion of the Rayonnant, 415
   The New Directions:
      A Brittle Linear Style, 423
      A Simplified Severe Style, 429
   The Northern Edges of Burgundy, 437
   Emergence of a New Gothic World, 445

Notes 465
Selective Bibliography 547
Index 583