ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We are thankful to the undergraduates, graduate students, and post-doctoral fellows who tirelessly collected and analyzed data as part of the Perceptions of Women in Academic Science study. Special thanks to Catalina Crespo, Jon Endean, Katherine Sorrell, Meagan Alley, Meghan Binford, Sarah James, and Vineeta Kapahi. Many thanks to undergraduate and graduate students who helped with data analysis: special thanks to Esther Chan, Claire Cummins, Celina Davila, Douglas DeVries, Hasitha Dharmasiri, Darian Dolenc, Allison Ecklund, George Enriquez, Naomi Fa-Kaji, Alyssa Fornara, Katie Fusco, Daniel Gillespie, Molly Goldstein, Mauri Gustafson, Henry Hancock, Jessie Ho, Cecilia Hutchings, Leigh Anne Jackson, Patrick Kelly, Rachel LaTouche, David Liou, Alley Lyles, Ryan Mulvenna, Laura Orr, William Pahl, Kelsey Pedersen, Rija Qureshi, Sara Smith, Cassandra Tansey, Kseniia Tokarieva, Ann-Hunter Van Kirk, Virginia White, and Lilly Yu. Thanks to Susan Ecklund, Laura Achenbaum, Heather Wax, Hayley Hemstreet, and Shelby Allen for manuscript preparation help. Thanks to Gwynn Thomas of the University at Buffalo, who read the manuscript in its early stages. This book was reviewed as part of the Religion and Public Life Program’s Books in Public Scholarship workshop. We are grateful to Erin Cech, Melinda Fagan, Sally Gallagher, David Johnson, Xavia Karner, Mary Ellen Konieczny, Laura Kramer, Elizabeth Long, Kirstin Matthews, Maria Oden, and Jared Peifer for taking the time to review this work in its entirety. Any weaknesses are ours alone.

Thanks to the National Science Foundation, Gender in Science and Engineering Program, for generously funding this research through grant number 0920837. We’re thankful to New York University Press and our editor Ilene Kalish. Finally, we extend our gratitude to our families. Elaine is especially grateful for the support of Karl and Anika.
This page intentionally left blank