Tables and Figures

Tables

2.1  Applied linguistics models of communicative competence and language ability 32
2.2  Schematic organisation of competences according to the CEFR 49
4.1  Distinguishing exercise and task 132
4.2  The difference between scenario roles and standard role plays 141
5.1  Macro-functional basis of CEFR categories for communicative language activities 166
6.1  Byram’s framework for intercultural citizenship 206
6.2  Descriptor scales for mediating concepts 237
6.3  Capacity for action in relation to democratic citizenship 240

Figures

2.1  The traits of a humanist version of competence. Richer (2017: 9) 43
2.2  A holistic model of competence 45
3.1  Halliday’s functions in the phases of child development 66
3.2  Five As framework of creativity 82
3.3  Multivariate model of creativity 83
4.1  Change and innovation in language teaching: last section: 1970–1980 128
4.2  The action-oriented approach 147
5.1  Curriculum as a dynamic system 157
5.2  The structure of the CEFR descriptive scheme 158
5.3  An ELP Language Passport profile 168
5.4 A plurilingual proficiency profile: listening 169
5.5 A plurilingual proficiency profile 169
5.6 A fictional profile of needs in an additional language – lower secondary 170

6.1 Aspects of mediation taken into account in the CEFR Companion Volume project 233

7.1 Intersections between class and society 252