Contents

Acknowledgements ............................................. vi
Foreword by Tove Skutnabb-Kangas .......................... vii
Introduction: What is Literacy? .............................. 1

Part 1: Theoretical Frameworks
1 Literacy: In Search of a Paradigm ......................... 25

Part 2: Literacy and Development Issues
2 Literacy and the Nation-State .............................. 59
3 Literacy and Social Development .......................... 77
4 The Role of Mass Literacy Campaigns in Social Development:
   Some Lessons from the Past .............................. 98

Part 3: Globalisation: The Implications of Technological Development, Social and Cultural Change for Concepts and Definitions of Literacy
5 Technological and Cultural Transformations ............. 129
6 Changing Definitions of 'Text' within the Information Society 155
7 Conceptualising Literacy, Knowledge and Power in the Information Society ....................................... 184
8 Towards a 'Communicative Competence' for Democratic
   Participation in the Information Society ............... 215

Bibliography .................................................... 242
Index ............................................................ 259