LIST OF FIGURES

Figure 1.1 Common view of cultural and heritage tourism ........................................... 5
Figure 1.2 Defining heritage tourism ........................................................................... 6

Figure 2.1 Four categories of cultural tourists ............................................................ 24
Figure 2.2 Australia’s main heritage tourism markets by country of origin ................. 31
Figure 2.3 Monthly visitation at Independence National Historical Park, Philadelphia, USA, 2018 ................................................................. 42

Figure 3.1 Model of tourist attractions ....................................................................... 51
Figure 3.2 A sample of heritage assets and types ....................................................... 53

Figure 4.1 Scales of heritage resources and experiences ............................................ 94
Figure 4.2 Historic urban core and peripheral heritage nodes in cities ....................... 101

Figure 5.1 Degrees of authenticity in the tourist experience ..................................... 114
Figure 5.2 Manifestations of distorted heritage ........................................................ 121

Figure 10.1 Influential factors in informal education at heritage sites ....................... 249
Figure 10.2 The procedural planning process ............................................................. 268

Figure 11.1 The PIC planning model ......................................................................... 285
Figure 12.1 A sustainable marketing model ............................................................... 311

Figure 15.1 A hypothetical archaeological site with planning zones ............................ 374
Figure 17.1 A typology of mine-based industrial attractions ..................................... 404

Figure 18.1 Scale of religiosity in visits to sacred sites ............................................. 419

Figure 21.1 Dark tourism demand and supply matrix ............................................. 486
Figure 21.2 Dark tourism spectrum ........................................................................... 486