Contents

Acknowledgments vii
Illustrations ix

Introduction 3

1 Patronage and Humanist Literature at Cracow, 1510–1530: The Careers of Rudolf Agricola Junior, Valentin Eck, and Leonard Cox 11
   Dynastic Politics and Artistic Patronage in Early Sixteenth-Century Poland: The Introduction of the New Style 11
   Literary Patronage at Cracow I: The Supporters of Humanist Latin 17
   Literary Patronage at Cracow II: The Wandering Humanist Poets 26
   The Search for Patronage 33
   Patronage and Career 38

2 Careerism at Cracow: Issues of Identity and Self-Promotion 47
   Self-Promotion and Career Building: The Letters of Rudolf Agricola Junior to Joachim Vadian 49
   Approaching the Patron: The Dedicatory Letters of Rudolf Agricola Junior, Valentin Eck, and Leonard Cox 62
   Approaching the Public: Commendatory Poems Accompanying the Works of Rudolf Agricola Junior, Valentin Eck, and Leonard Cox 71
3 Hero-Making: The Image of the Great Man 87
   Strategies for the Portrayal of the Hero 87
   The Image of the Patron in Valentin Eck’s Panegyricus in laudem Augustini Morau and De antiquissima nominis et familiae Thurzonum origine 102

4 The Need for the Immediate Production of Poetry: Political Propaganda and Occasional Verse 117
   Dynastic Pretensions: Political Negotiations and War 119
   Hungary under Louis II Jagiellon 170

Conclusion 185

Appendix 1: The Works of Rudolf Agricola Junior, Valentin Eck, and Leonard Cox: Short-Title Bibliographies 199
Appendix 2: Variants of Personal and Place Names 209
Notes 213
Bibliography 287
Index 317