

Illustrations

2.1	Members of the Canadian legation to the 1937 Imperial Conference.	18
2.2	The itinerary prepared for King by Ribbentrop's office.	21
2.3	H.D.G. Crerar, Commander of the First Canadian Army.	23
2.4	Friedrichstrasse station in the spring of 1950.	27
2.5	Friedrichstrasse station in 2017.	28
2.6	Frank Meisler's 2008 sculpture for the Kindertransport operation.	29
2.7	The Friedrichstrasse Station memorial to two executed German soldiers.	30
2.8	Sir Nevile Henderson greets Prime Minister Mackenzie King, 27 June 1937.	31
3.1 and 3.2	Exuberant Aryan specimens of the Hitlerjugend.	34
3.3	John Henry Amszewitz, poster for the British Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi Council.	40
3.4	Mackenzie King at the opening of the 1937 All-German Sports Competitions.	44
3.5	King and Walther Hewel at the 1937 All-German Sports Competitions.	46
3.6	Ley, King, Pickering, and Tschammer reviewing tennis participants, 1937.	47
3.7	King takes the Fuhrer's seat at Olympiastadion with Tschammer.	48
4.1	Built in 1868, Wilhelmstraße 70 became the British Embassy in the 1880s.	51
4.2	The new British Embassy in Berlin, 2017.	52

6.1	King chats with Ontario Liberal leader Mitchell Hepburn in 1934.	77
6.2	King with R.B. Bennett in 1933.	79
7.1	Pariser Platz dressed for the 1936 Olympics.	88
7.2	Pariser Platz and Brandenburger Tor in June 1945.	90
7.3	From 1945 to 1990, the Brandenburger Tor and Pariser Platz lay in East Berlin.	91
7.4	The Hotel Adlon in 1926, looking southeast from Pariser Platz.	92
7.5	The Adlon following the war, looking southeast.	93
7.6	The New Adlon, opened in 1997, looking southeast.	94
8.1	German Labour Service in a 1936 Nazi propaganda pictorial.	101
8.2	Photograph from the propaganda pictorial Germany , 1936.	104
8.3	German women enjoying a summer retreat, 1936.	105
9.1	Diversity, Nazi-style, 1936.	121
10.1	Commemoration of those who defied Hitler's regime.	126
12.1	Reichsluftfahrtministerium headquarters, completed in 1936.	139
12.2	A photograph of striking workers set in the sidewalk, Leipziger Strasse.	141
12.3	Göring unloads at a shooting range before enthralled minions.	144
14.1	Hitler's New Reich Chancellery lives on in Berlin's Treptower Park.	160
14.2	Adolf Hitler's gift to Mackenzie King.	171
14.3	King on the steps of the Reichspräsidentenpalais after his meeting with Hitler.	172
15.1	The former Hitlerjugend headquarters fell within the Soviet zone.	176
15.2	Hungry Berliners transformed Tiergarten into a post-war vegetable garden.	178
15.3	Peter Eisenman's 2005 Memorial to the Murdered Jews of Europe.	180
15.4	The Nazis' notorious burning of "degenerate" books.	181
15.5	Micha Ullman's 1995 memorial to the book-burning.	182
15.6	Cows graze outside the Staatsoper in the summer of 1945.	183
15.7	The Staatsoper undergoing renovations in summer 2017.	184
16.1	The eastern entrance to the Allgemeine Elektrizitäts-Gesellschaft facility.	188

16.2	Berlin memorial plaque to slave labourers at AEG headquarters.	189
16.3	King and Pickering tour the Allgemeine Elektrizitäts-Gesellschaft grounds.	190
16.4	King developed an instant rapport with the aristocratic Neurath.	196
17.1	King holds Pat and Derry in this 1938 studio photograph.	203
18.1	King inspects a guard of honour in Redhill, England, 1 July 1941.	217
18.2	Crerar and King in Ottawa for the 7 August 1945 victory parade.	222
19.1	Robertson, King, Claxton, Heeney, Paris Peace Conference, August 1946.	224
19.2	King in the Reich Chancellery garden near the entrance to the Führerbunker.	226
19.3	King picks his way through the rubble to enter the Old Reich Chancellery.	227
19.4	Frau Beier, was named "Berlin's best rubble woman" in 1950.	228
19.5	King inspects an honour guard of US soldiers in Nuremberg.	229

